Cape Charles motor lodge celebrates minimalism

At Tiny Livin', historic motel has a renaissance, thanks to couple advocating that less is more

BY TED SHOCKLEY
Eastern Shore Post

Sylvia and Eric Hawkins were living in Virginia Beach years ago when they decided having fewer belongings is better — and that the trappings of life can be a trap themselves.

Or, as Sylvia Hawkins asked rhetorically, “Do you have stuff, or does your stuff have you?”

So they moved out of their 3,000-square-foot home. And Eric Hawkins told the 20 employees at his business that he was moving into a 400-square-foot travel trailer in a campground.

“It was all about having a fuller life with less stuff,” he said.

They wanted to share with others the liberating joy of minimalism. Near Cape Charles, they found the perfect place to do so.

They opened Cape Charles Tiny Livin', a revitalized old motor court with rooms for rent for vacationers.

Two years ago they bought the old Esso Park Auto Court, which features small lodges and had been

Town inks $18.5M deal for sewer initiative

BY STEFANIE JACKSON
Eastern Shore Post

Exmore's highly anticipated sewer project will be completed for less than $18.5 million by the Kevcor Contracting Corporation, of Norfolk, the Town Council affirmed by unanimous vote on Monday.

The decision was “a long time coming. Way to go, guys,” Councilman Chase Sturgis congratulated his peers.

Of the five contractor bids that were opened March 22, Kevcor's was the lowest, with the highest bid nearing $75 million, said Director of Utilities Taylor Dukes.

Even the low bid is higher than town officials prefer, but the

Maryland woman is fatally injured in Oak Hall highway crash

A Pocomoke City, Md., woman was fatally injured Friday evening, March 31, while crossing U.S. Route 13 at the T's Corner intersection when she was hit by two southbound vehicles.

Latasha Blake, 38, of the 400 block of Banks Street, Pocomoke City, sustained fatal wounds after being hit by the second vehicle, which did not stop at the scene, according to state police.

The second vehicle is described as a black Jeep with New York license plates, the state police reported in a prepared release. An investigation remains open.

The deceased woman "illegally crossed the traffic lanes," according to police, at the intersection of Lankford Highway and Chincoteague Road.

The first driver, who had the green light, was unable to avoid the pedestrian and hit her before the Jeep hit her.

Target store merchandise available here on the Eastern Shore — illegally

BY NANCY DRURY DUNCAN
Eastern Shore Post

A New Jersey man driving a truckload of Target merchandise from Suffolk, Va., to New York stopped twice in Accomack County to pilfer items from his truck.

Yoanny Justiz, 40, of North Bergen, N.J., pleaded guilty to two counts of embezzlement of merchandise worth more than $1,000.

In exchange for his pleas of guilt, charges of conspiring to racketeer and racketeering were not prosecuted according to the terms of a plea agreement.

On April 13, 2021, Justiz was driving from a Target distribution center.

He stopped at Stuckey's on U.S. Route 13 near Mappsville from 4:18 to 4:57 p.m., according to the vehicle's recording global positioning system.

When he arrived in New York, the seal on the cargo section of the truck was found to be broken.

Its contents were in disarray and merchandise

The court case

- A New Jersey man working as a truck driver pleaded guilty in Accomack County Circuit Court to taking items from his trailer during two different instances while hauling items on the Eastern Shore.
- Among the missing items were Apple iPads, watches, and iPods.
- The total value of the items taken is $47,440.

was missing, said Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan.

Among the missing items were Apple iPads, watches, and iPods, Morgan said.

On April 21, 2021, the truck was making the same trip from Suffolk to New York. This time, the trailer's cargo section was outfitted with a video surveillance system.

The truck stopped again at Stuckey's and data from the truck's GPS showed the stop lasted from 3:01 to 8:56 a.m.

When the truck arrived in New York, the seal had been tampered with, said Morgan.

When the surveillance video was viewed, Justiz and an accomplice were seen inside the sealed area of the truck.

The total value of the items taken is $47,440, Morgan said.

He said Justiz' co-defendant has been indicted but not yet apprehended.

Defense attorney Andre Wiggins said he expected his client to make full restitution before sentencing.

According to the agreement, Justiz may remain on bond until sentencing and his active prison time will be capped at three years.

A February 2016 article on www.nj.com, a New Jersey news website, reported Justiz and others pleaded guilty to involvement in a $1.5 million cargo theft ring operating in New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania.

Justiz is set to be sentenced on July 27.

Historic Onancock School earns Bronze award

Coastal Virginia magazine has given Historic Onancock School a Bronze award based on voting for "Best of Virginia's Eastern Shore" in the "Best Art Gallery" category.

HOS is the only gallery north of Cape Charles to place this year. In 2022, HOS also won "Best Gallery" in an ESVA Tourism survey.

There are 15 resident artists and artisans at HOS, including carvers, painters, graphic artists, yarn and fiber specialists, jewelry designers, sculptors and a blacksmith.

The HOS community and cultural center also hosts four exhibits a year by the Eastern Shore Art League, a longtime resident at HOS.

Individual artists and artisans teach and offer workshops in their studios as well.

In addition to receptions for ESAL exhibits, HOS hosts Wine Wednesdays the first Wednesday of each month, when the main gallery and resident artists' and artisans' studios are open for visitors.

Since 2006, HOS has endeavored to provide a home for individual artists to pursue their objectives in generous studio spaces at reasonable cost.

4 p.m. burn ban remains in effect

With spring fully underway, the Virginia Department of Forestry reminds Virginians that the 4 p.m. burning law, which restricts open-air burning of any kind until after 4 p.m., remains in effect through April 30.

Last month, VDOF responded to more than 150 wildfires that burned approximately 1,400 acres. Suppression efforts by VDOF and its firefighter partners since the start of this year are credited with saving more than 170 homes and buildings, with an estimated protected value in the millions.

"April is one of Virginia's busiest months in terms of wildfire activity each year," said VDOF Director of Fire and Emergency Response John Miller.

Unsafe equipment is a common cause of wildfires. Avoid driving through or parking on dry grass or brush, as hot exhaust pipes can set vegetation on fire. Sparks from lawnmowers and power equipment can also start wildfires. Mow before 10 a.m., but never when it's windy or excessively dry. Remember that lawnmowers are designed to mow lawns, not weeds or dry grass.

Exmore

roughly $18.4 million project cost is a worst-case scenario, as Kevcor has recommended several cost-saving measures that could potentially save thousands or even $1 million or more.

These measures will be detailed in a “value engineering proposal,” Sturgis said.

Kevcor made three cost-saving recommendations:

■ Install the sewer pipes under U.S. Route 13 using a horizontal directional drill instead of the jack and bore method.

The jack and bore method involves digging a pit 40 feet deep on either side of the highway. A boring machine is lowered into the launch pit and bores through the ground where the pipe will run, exiting through the receiving pit on the opposite side.

Horizontal directional drilling would not require 40-foot-deep pits. The drill would bore a hole “about the size of a piece of plywood” through the ground, Dukes said. A standard sheet of plywood is 4 feet wide and 8 feet long.

■ Use high-density, plastic pipe fittings instead of iron pipe fittings.

Dukes noted that any iron or steel used on the sewer project must be certified American, and acquiring the certifications involves extra time and cost.

■ Simplify the project design on Main Street, where the sewer collection system will cross the road underground to serve Exmore’s administrative offices.

Dukes added that the town also can save money by modifying the specifications on the bid sheet, allowing two different companies to quote prices on the grinder pumps that will be installed at the homes and businesses connected to the sewer system.

The grinder pumps will process sewage into a slurry before transporting it through the collection system to the treatment plant.

Town Manager Robert Duer said that to pay off a previous loan and include a contingency fund to cover unanticipated costs, the sewer project would cost about $21.7 million.

‘I think you ought to take care of Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer.’

Douglas Greer
Mayor, Town of Exmore

Sturgis asked if Exmore has enough money to complete the project.

“That’s borderline. We’re close,” Duer said. “If all the funding comes through, we’re there.”

He added that the cost will be “much better” with value engineering.

Exmore can move forward with the sewer project after the bid is approved by Bowman, the engineering firm the town employs, and the project’s major funding partners, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality.

The town and engineering and contracting firms also must work out the details of the value engineering proposal.

Dukes updated the Town Council on the funding Exmore set aside to connect homes and/or businesses to the new collection system.

The town applied for a grant of $4.2 million from DEQ; a DEQ grant of $3.5 million was included in Virginia’s two-year budget.

Dukes gave the Town Council two options: apply the funds to the cost of connecting every home to the pump station and running the wire to the meter, or divide the money evenly among all Exmore homes and businesses.

The Town Council consented to the first option after Dukes recommended that the funding should benefit homeowners, and businesses should have “skin in the game.”

Mayor Douglas Greer agreed and said the move would ease tensions between the town and homeowners who have working septic systems but are required by the sewer project’s funding partners to connect to the new system.

“I think you ought to take care of Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer,” he said.

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION

Drone-delivered medical supplies a good local fit

Transportation is an issue on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Many areas aren't easily walkable. Transportation to employment, education, and medical opportunities can be difficult. Our fuel prices, like those around the country, are abnormally high. Costs of vehicles and automotive insurance are prohibitive to many in our area.

So we are excited about the possibilities of a plan that would use unmanned aircraft, commonly called drones, to deliver medical supplies around the Eastern Shore and Tangier Island.

Yes, it is a difficult concept to imagine — a small, helicopter-like apparatus ferrying critical pharmaceuticals to those who need it. But vehicles, airplanes, and the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel once were hard to imagine, also.

Nearly $1.9 million in federal funding will go toward planning and prototyping the first phase of a drone project to deliver the medical supplies.

Part of the process will be reforming federal regulations on drone flights. Currently, each aircraft and each flight beyond the line of sight requires drone operators to get a federal waiver.

Said U.S. Sen. Mark Warner of Virginia, "Drones have the ability to transform so much of the way we do business. Beyond package delivery, drones can change the way we grow crops, manage disasters, maintain our infrastructure, and administer medicine."

We can see each of these having a positive impact on the Eastern Shore. But with some of our population facing transportation concerns, getting necessary medicine and medical supplies directly to the home would be an uncommon amenity for the Eastern Shore.

'God created us male and female'

To the editor:

I read the March 31 guest column, "LGBTQIA+ community means something different for everyone," by Karrie Phillips and my heart dropped.

I know Phillips means well, but if a person is to be truly kind to one of these confused young ones, the kindest thing to do is speak truth to them.

God created us male and female. He says that the truth will make us free. Isn't that what we all want — to be free?

Pretty much all of us as adolescents were confused pret-

In defense of a heterosexual lifestyle

To the editor:

This is a response to the March 31 guest column by Karrie Phillips, "LGBTQIA+ community means something different for everyone."

While saying that "the LGBTQIA+ community means something different for everyone" seems right-minded and reasonable, we need to realize that there is a lot more inside this "community" than meets the eye.

When "communities" can be "ever-evolving and changing," they may change in areas we might not expect, with re-

Life without wondrous Kate's Kupboard takes the cake

I was sullen and surly over the winter after Kate's Kupboard, the Belle Haven bakery, closed suddenly.

I didn't feel like getting out of bed and lost patience with our kitty cat about little stuff I once ignored.

Ted Shockley

I sat alone on the steps of our home as the leaves fell from trees, the evenings grew colder and darker, and I longed for baked goods from Kate's Kupboard.

Losing any hallmark Eastern Shore business is troubling. But losing a bakery, well, takes the cake.

Kate Ward, the proprietor, closed the eponymous business Nov. 18 of last year because she had back surgery and faced a long recovery. She said it was a difficult decision.

I thought of Ward as Easter approached. It was one of her busier holidays. One year she made and sold 200 dozen rolls.

"Rolls for the holidays — we had people come from Pocomoke and Chincoteague to get them," she said.

Ward said she is recovering nicely from her back surgery but thinks frequently about the enjoyment she received from her long-running business.

"I miss baking — and the people," she said. "I have seen so many of my customers and I have received cards from them."

She opened the first Kate's Kupboard in 1982 in Eastville. She opened the second location in Belle Haven in 1992. The Eastville location closed in 1994.

In all, she was in business for 40 years — including the last 31 at her familiar spot in Belle Haven, which also sold a variety of subs and sandwiches.

She said she was grateful for all her customers. A.C. Ward, her husband, said he was grateful for the calm Christmas they had last December — always her busiest season — after her shop closed.

EASTERN SHORE POST/TED SHOCKLEY

Kate Ward holds a pan of freshly baked bear claws in 2017 at her business, Kate's Kupboard in Belle Haven.

"It was the first Christmas we have had in 30 or 40 years that she wasn't dead tired," he said.

I ate many wonderful Italian subs from Kate's. Her cheesesteak subs also were popular — the aroma of steak and onions on the griddle would usually waft through the back parking lot.

For a while, I felt like a regular at Kate's Kupboard, which I considered an honor worthy of placement on my resume.

Sometimes, someone would call my name as I swept through the entry door, like Norm Peterson entering the bar on the television show "Cheers."

Some people pay monthly dues to belong to gyms and workout clubs. I belonged among the bakery regulars at Kate's and never even had to pay an initiation fee.

Over time, places like Kate's Kupboard are a well-earned respite from a cruel, hard world.

In my opinion, there's no problem that a bag of fresh, warm brownies can't fix.

One of Ward's longtime customers lived out of the area and said she considered selling her Silver Beach vacation home because Kate's Kupboard closed.

"There's no need to come to the Shore if we can't come to Kate's," the customer wrote in a letter.

"It's very flattering," said Kate Ward. "I nearly cried."

I know the feeling. I nearly cried, too.

sults we might not truly intend. The end effect could be an America where anything goes as long as it can be justified by love, sexual orientation, and community.

The Judeo-Christian culture is not the only one to place restrictions on sexually oriented relationships. Consider adultery, polygamy, and relationships between adults and youth.

What is adultery? It is when two married people engage in a loving, mutually agreed upon sexual relationship.

The sticking point here is that they are not married to each other. But should that be a problem? Should society object? Should there be laws against these loving relationships?

Inside the "community" of personal sexual orientation, it would be the aggrieved spouses in dire need of tolerance, inclusion, and sensitivity training.

Regarding polygamy, so what if three or more people want to join together in the "community" of a loving, mutually agreed upon marriage relationship? No one should bat an eye at this, and all laws related to polygamy would need to be

About the end of men — and its ramifications for the future

According to research from Forbes and The Atlantic magazines, Hanna Rosin, author of the book, “The End of

David Lozell Martin

Men,” National Public Radio, the Urban Institute, The New York Times, and Brookings:
■ Women hold the majority of jobs in the U.S., including 51.4% of jobs as managers and professionals.
■ Of the 15 job categories projected to grow the most over the next 10 years, 13 are dominated by women.
■ Although in the minority, female CEOs earn 43% more than men do and receive bigger raises.
■ Women make up 58% of college enrollments, and at every level of education — high school, community college, and four-year colleges — women graduate at higher levels than men.

■ Women receive 60% of all bachelor’s and master’s degrees, half of all the law and medical degrees, and 54% of doctorate degrees.
■ Some colleges, concerned about the low levels of enrollments of men, are giving special consideration to male applicants in an effort to increase their enrollments.
■ More than half of all households in the U.S. are headed by women, and 43% of married households are headed by women.
■ In 2021, single women owned 2.64 million more homes than did single men (10.76 million versus 8.12 million).
■ Of all people being arrested, 85% are men.
Everyone celebrates the progress women have made in education, employment, and other areas of modern life after being held down and held back for so long because of their gender. But celebrating one group’s accomplishments shouldn’t prevent us from recognizing the trouble another group faces.

The world is made unhappier and more dangerous when a large group of testosterone-fueled men are unemployed, unattached, unschooled, and disconnected from the usual progress of life.
In the U.S., the alienation of men has led to a particularly noxious development of incel men (incel means involuntarily celibate) who are angry at the world with a special hatred for women and feminism. Incels have committed dozens of murders and assaults. The movement has an especially harmful effect as its hateful philosophy and nastiness toward women are readily available on social media, read by, and spread by, men across the country.
In Japan, studies have shown that between 60 to 75% of young men identify themselves as belonging to a group that’s called herbivore men, or “grass-eating boys,” young men who are not gay but not interested in women or in having sex with anyone. Instead, they are devoted to self, to gentle activities such as gardening and grooming (eyebrow plucking and facials) and quiet times with friends. They’re close to their mothers and have women friends but are absolutely not interested in marriage. Unlike previous generations of Japanese men, they are neither big drinkers nor devoted to their careers.

None of this sounds dangerous but, because of herbivore men and other factors, such as an aging population, Japan’s birthrate and population are both plummeting. By 2060, Japan’s population will have dropped to 87 million (from 128 million in 2010) with the country’s working-age population being cut in half.
As The Atlantic magazine says, “It is fabulous to see girls and young women poised for success in the coming years. But allowing generations of boys to grow up feeling rootless and obsolete is not a recipe for a peaceful future.”

struck down as mean-spirited and wrongheaded.

As for adult relationships with youth, in a “community” where “sexual orientation is an emotional, romantic, sexual or affectional attraction...to other people,” how can we reasonably place an age restriction on love?

There’s nothing holy or sacred about the number 18. That number is arbitrary and plucked out of thin air. Inside the “community,” there should be minimal restrictions placed on loving, mutually agreed upon relationships regardless the age (or sex) of the participants.

There are also very serious First Amendment issues here.

Can all religions be forced by law or litigation to accept all sexual orientations, relationships, and communities regardless of the religion’s fundamental tenets and beliefs?

While it is one thing to protect the public civil rights of the LGB community, it is quite another to use the power of government and its courts to dictate — or bankrupt — religion.

The freedoms of speech, press, and assembly also would be grievously wounded.

I respect all cultures and communities that conduct themselves in a peaceful manner. The laws criminalizing and marginalizing the LGBTQ+ community were wrongheaded and meanspirited in the first place, and should never have been put on the books.

However, I defend my First Amendment right to state fundamental truth as I see it and to urge others towards a “community” dedicated to a heterosexual, family-oriented lifestyle. Therein lies the true strength and future of America.

Get security officers at all schools

To the editor:

The number one issue for schools is safety.

Why don’t we have security officers at all of our schools?

We protect our politicians, celebrities, sporting events, and shopping malls.

Do the lives of our children not matter enough?

Why in Accomack County are there no security officers at all our schools? I don’t want to hear that “the doors are locked.”

They should be locked and security should have a presence at the school’s main entrance in the morning, afternoon, and throughout the school all day.

Do you think a shooter is going to worry about a locked door? After a few shots, they are in! The presence of security will most likely deter them from even thinking about it.

As parents, grandparents, teachers, and students, none of us should have to fear when we send our students and teachers to school.

Accomack County had extra COVID-19 money to spend, so Saturday school was chosen.

What does it cost for the county to open schools on Saturday? I’m sure the school board members were given this figure.

COVID-19 has caused a lot of mental health issues. Why not use this extra COVID-19 money to secure our schools?

If any school board member does not vote for security officers (not just locked doors) in all our schools, then we have the right to not vote them back in come November.

Of all the issues we believe are important for our schools, security must be number one.

What good are smart students and good teachers if they are dead?

Our thoughts are with the folks of Green Hills, Nashville, Tenn.

Recognizing the Department of Health during National Public Health Week

BY THE EASTERN SHORE HEALTH DISTRICT

Did you know that Virginia’s history of improving public health goes right back to the first colonists?

In 1610, three years after Jamestown was founded, the first sanitation law was passed. By the mid-1630s and beyond, colonists were thinking about collecting vital statistics and regulating the practice of medicine.

Since those early days, public health in Virginia has evolved with the establishment of the state Board of Health, in the tracking and treatment of diseases, discovery of vaccines, oversight of public water supplies, oral and maternal health, sewage treatment and so much more. Public Health Week began Monday, April 3. During Public Health week, we recognize the efforts of public health workers to protect and promote the health of all Virginians.

The Virginia Department of Health has over 3,000 employees across 35 health districts and 119 local health departments.

The VDH vision is for Virginia to become the healthiest state in the nation. Public health workers promote healthy lifestyle choices, educate the public to prepare for emergencies and other threats to health, and track disease outbreaks in the state, just to name a few.

Douglas Godbey

Mr. Douglas Benson Godbey, better known as Doug, 76, husband of Faye Collins Godbey, passed away unexpectedly on March 30, 2023, after a brief illness, at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital.

He was born May 19, 1946, to the late James Henry Godbey (a second career United Methodist pastor) and the late Janet Estella McMahon Godbey, in Omaha, Neb. He received his education and graduated from high school in Kansas. He was very proud of his Scottish heritage from the McMahon side of his mother. He had a kilt collection and enjoyed the group Mike Bailey used to get together to meet monthly for dinner and conversation at the Blarney Stone Pub to celebrate their Scottish heritage. Sometimes there were six and sometimes as many as 25 gathering, with many in kilts or tartan scarves.

After high school Doug joined the U.S. Coast Guard, trained in Cape May, N.J., and served four years during the Vietnam War, with brief time in Vietnam and other service time in Greenland and Alaska. He was also in the Coast Guard Reserve and later in the Naval Reserve. He was proud of being a "Coastie," and in his retirement years often wore a Coast Guard ball cap.

He spent his career working in Information Technology (IT), working for such companies as American Airlines and IBM. He also did contract work. He never pursued a college degree but took numerous courses related to IT to improve his knowledge and skills. After his stroke on November 19, 2004, he had to retire on disability due to paralysis affecting his left side.

He moved to the Eastern Shore of Virginia from Austin, Texas, after meeting Faye Collins Sandsbury. They married in 2008 and just recently celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary. He loved the Eastern Shore better than any place he had ever lived. He never saw a stranger no matter where he was. He didn't remember names or faces very well, but people seemed to remember him, as almost always he used a walking stick (and had a collection of them). He said he didn't know how so many people remembered him

— it wasn't every day that they saw a friendly man with a walking stick.

Doug accepted the Lord as his Savior while in the Coast Guard and became a student of the Bible, increasing his time in independent Bible study after moving to the Eastern Shore as well as participating in Lay Servant classes and various group Bible studies.

He loved to share his Biblical knowledge and opinions with others, and a person often asked was he a preacher or had he been to seminary. Doug was a member of the Franktown United Methodist Church, the Hamilton Men's Sunday School class, and was a Certified Lay Servant with the Eastern Shore District (now Coastal District). He served two years as a district lay delegate to the Virginia Annual Conference. He belonged to the Emmaus Community and served two years on the Men's Emmaus team.

Doug loved puppetry and had a collection of puppets that he used when volunteering with Franktown UMC and Drummondtown UMC summer Bible Schools and with Franktown and Epworth UMC's worship services. He designed a puppet stage and had someone cut PVC pipe to make an easy to set up and take down stage with curtains to attach easily.

Other interests of Doug included participating with vocal groups prior to his stroke, including Barbershop and musica della fattoria. He had a small collection of wind, percussion, and string instruments that he hoped to play with one hand. The most recent one arrived the day he was admitted to the hospital.

He liked creative writing and participated in Academy for Lifelong Learning (ALL) classes at ESCC. He wrote fiction for the classes and pieces on faith and the Bible at other times. He was a volunteer at and served on the board of the Eastern Shore Waterman's Museum, Historic Onancock School.

In addition to his loving wife, he is survived by his daughter, Charity Godbey of Tulsa, Okla.; granddaughter, Sophie Faith of Las Vegas; grandson, Adam Mahaffey; and great-granddaughter, Autumn Mahaffey of Broken Arrow, Okla.; Faye's daughter, Michelle Richardson Goulding (Andrew), and grandchildren, Cian and Lauren of Raleigh, N.C.; his God Family, daughter, Heather Trantham (Kendall), and children, Ryan Lopez, Aaron Lopez (Lexie), Hannah Lopez (Avery), Aiden Trantham, Gavin Trantham (all of Tennessee); sister, Christine Poersch (Monte) of Kansas, brother, Mike Godbey (Kris) of Minnesota, and many nieces and nephews. In addition to his parents, he was predeceased by infant sister, Jocelyn Marie Godbey and brother, George Godbey.

A Celebration of Life will be held Saturday, April 15, 2023, at Franktown United Methodist Church at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Dr. Richard "Brother Dick" Daily officiating. Flowers and/or donations are acceptable. Donations may be sent to Franktown United Methodist Church, P.O. Box 130, Franktown, VA 23354.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Norfolk State University Concert Choir performing on the Eastern Shore.

Enjoyed Norfolk State Concert Choir

To the editor:

For those of us who attended the visiting Norfolk State University Concert Choir event on Palm Sunday, it was a joyful and uplifting experience.

Harlan Zackary Jr. led this spirited and strong group of college students as their voices resonated in the sun-light-filled sanctuary.

Assisted by student conductors, the choir entertained with everything from the African American spiritual "Great God Almighty"; the Black National Anthem, "Lift Every Voice and Sing"; to the familiar, "This Little Light of Mine."

By the end of the concert, after the high-energy "Victory," many patrons were up on their feet, clapping and swaying in unison with the choir.

And finally, as the choir left the altar, they surrounded the pews of spectators and raised their voices with the moving and popular "Circle of Life."

It was a beautiful way to spend a Sunday afternoon and the audience appeared moved by the gift of such young men and women using their talent to bring such a blessing to our area.

The concert was followed by a lovely catered reception where even the pre-meal blessing was sung.

Plaintiff in Accawmacke Indian lands lawsuit files federal appeal

BY STEFANIE JACKSON
Eastern Shore Post

The plaintiff who sued for the return of lands in Eastville that once belonged to her Accawmacke Indian ancestors has filed an appeal of the lawsuit recently dismissed by a federal court judge.

“It’s only the beginning. It’s not over,” said Lisa Cypress, who filed the lawsuit against the Northampton County Board of Supervisors and PNC Bank in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia in July 2021.

In her complaint, she alleged that PNC Bank’s Eastville branch and Northampton County’s Indiantown Park occupy lands formerly owned by her Accawmacke Indian ancestors and fraudulently conveyed to other parties.

But U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Hanes granted the motions to dismiss by PNC Bank and the Northampton County Board of Supervisors.

In her decision, she referenced a Virginia precedent that states the burden of proof is on the plaintiff, who must produce documentation of an “unbroken chain” of land transfers showing the plaintiff is the legal owner of the property in question.

The case should be made “upon the strength of [her] own title rather than upon the weakness of the defendant’s title,” Hanes wrote.

The judge would have preferred to see an unbroken chain of deeds rather than the unbroken chain of Accawmacke Indian descendants that Cypress provided, covering from the mid-1700s to present.

There is also a 15-year statute of limitations for a plaintiff to request that a party be ejected from land it does not legally own.

In the case of PNC Bank, the 15-year mark would have been reached in 1988.

Cypress admitted that filing the lawsuit has been a learning experience for her.

“An ejectment is for real estate, and the lawsuit is really not about real estate. So, it may be the incorrect filing, but it’s still a justified lawsuit,” she said.

“I didn’t file it as a land patent case, and that’s my error,” Cypress added.

The Accawmacke Indians, aka the Gingaskins, were granted their property by an English crown land patent in 1640.

Their troubles began in 1813 when the Virginia General Assembly responded to complaints by white landowners by passing legislation to dissolve the reservation.

Approximately 650 acres were divided into more than two dozen parcels and deeded to individual members of the Accawmacke Indian tribe, who could sell the land as they wished.

But Cypress contends that because the land was granted to the Accawmacke Indians by crown land patent, no one other than a royal can transfer ownership of the land.

She also said there is no statute of limitations for land patent disputes.

The General Assembly had no authority to convert the patented land to “fee simple real estate,” and no one other than a blood descendant of the Accawmacke Indians can legally own the land, Cypress asserted.

She is confident that she can win her lawsuit on appeal and cited a legal precedent in Virginia.

In 1983, when a judge reached a decision in Commonwealth v. Morgan, plaintiffs Deborah G. Morgan and others were granted submerged lands, specifically, oyster beds, in Carter’s Cove, near the Rappahannock River.

The plaintiffs had provided evidence that the submerged lands were included in a crown land patent dated 1642, and the plaintiffs included documentation of an unbroken chain of property transfers starting with the land patent and ending with themselves.

Cypress said if her appeal fails, she may file a new lawsuit based on her land patent claim, and there are other Accawmacke Indian descendants who are willing to help.

“Our ancestors ... worked to get that patent. ... They fought in court,” Cypress said. “For us not to continue to litigate to get what is, you know, justifiably ours would be ... insane.”

Town sells property and awards paving contracts

BY CAROL VAUGHAN
Eastern Shore Post

Chincoteague officials at the April 3 Town Council meeting approved selling a parcel of land owned by the town to Lisa R. and William P. Reed Jr. for $80,000.

The 0.124 acre property near Memorial Park is excess property “not in current or planned future use” by the town, according to the ordinance approved Monday by the council.

The parcel is adjacent on the northeast to lands owned by Billy Read & Son LLC and Billy Reed LLC and on the southeast and southwest is bounded by the mean low water mark of Assateague Channel.

No one spoke at a public hearing about the sale.

Paving contracts awarded

The council in other action awarded a contract of up to $459,503.50 to Paragon Paving, of Norfolk, for paving streets, including Cropper Street, Maddox Boulevard, and Woodland Drive, and awarded a $122,375 contract for sidewalk work on Cropper Street to 360 Services.

In other work on the Cropper Street rehabilitation project, installation of water services is complete and storm drain installation was due to happen this week.

Sidewalk demolition is set to begin the week of April 30, according to Public Works Director Wesley Parks.

Chincoteague Center

Delivery of new heating, ventilation, and air-conditioning equipment for the Chincoteague Center has been delayed until at least July 4, according to Town Manager Mike Tolbert.

While the town waits for the equipment to be delivered, work will begin on a new audiovisual system at the center.

Tolbert said preventive maintenance on the existing HVAC system will be done “so that it will be ready to go with the approach of warmer weather,” according to Tolbert.

Chincoteague High School’s commencement in June was relocated from the center to the high school gymnasium this year as result of the HVAC project at the center.

The former firehouse on Main Street, which the town owns, now has all eight available spaces leased.

The former ambulance bay was leased on March 20 to Marsh Pony Designs, which plans to use it to offer custom crafts and designs, Tolbert said.

Meals and lodging, cigarette taxes

Chincoteague collected nearly $69,000 in transient occupancy taxes in March, a significant increase over last year, when almost $45,000 was collected, and fiscal year 2021, when the town collected almost $46,000.

The town this fiscal year has collected more than $1.9 million in transient occupancy taxes, exceeding the $1.7 million budgeted. The fiscal year ends June 30.

Chincoteague Inlet will be dredged

BY CAROL VAUGHAN
Eastern Shore Post

A federal project to dredge the Chincoteague Inlet received “a substantial amount of funding,” including $800,000 in the president’s budget and $2.23 million in the Army Corps of Engineers fiscal year 2023 work plan, according to Chincoteague Town Manager Mike Tolbert.

The money will be used for “a full scope dredging contract” in fiscal years 2024 and 2025, he said.

Dredging will focus on high shoaling areas and restore the channel to previously authorized depths.

Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge is interested in using the sandy dredged material at a restoration site around Tom’s Cove, Tolbert said. He said further coordination with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Park Service will happen in the coming months.

“The refuge has been asking for some beneficial dredged material for a while. That’s a win-win,” Tolbert said.

The federal navigation inner channel at the inlet has a maximum dredging depth of 12 feet and is maintained at 9 feet, according to Tolbert’s report.

The outer channel has a maximum dredging depth of 17 feet and Army Corps tries to maintain it at 12 feet.

The dredging project likely will focus on the area around the inlet mouth, mainly because of the distance to pump dredged materials to the CNWR area surrounding the Swan Cove impoundment, according to Tolbert.

Mayor Leonard recommended town officials suggest dredged materials be placed off the southern end of Chincoteague — “right there off of Birch’s Island, or Little Chincoteague, as we know it,” saying that would help protect the harbor and the southern end of Chincoteague.

Cape Charles Main Street plans to build a platform around the car, resembling those from the heyday of railroading in Cape Charles. At the end of the platform will be a building to house a visitors center and restrooms. The car is located near the end of the planned bicycle trail leading into Cape Charles.

Northampton High holds second annual career fair

EASTERN SHORE POST/STEFANIE JACKSON

Sabrina Brady talks to students about her work as Bay Creek’s membership director.

BY CAROL VAUGHAN
Eastern Shore Post

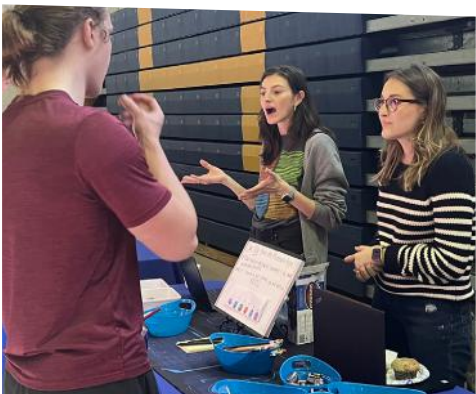

Northampton High School students at the school’s second annual career fair on Monday engaged with professionals and learned about a variety of careers, many of which can be pursued on the Eastern Shore.

The professionals in attendance represented industries including law and public safety, health care, education, environmental preservation, agriculture, business management and administration, art and communications, information technology, hospitality and tourism, trades, and the military.

Local organizations, agencies, and employers that were represented included Northampton County Public Schools, the Northampton County Sheriff’s Office, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, Eastern Shore Rural Health, the Eastern Shore Community Services Board, Kiptopeke State Park, Bay Creek, The Nature Conservancy’s Virginia Coast Reserve, the Eastern Shore Agricultural Research and Extension Center, and the U.S. Coast Guard.

There were also Northampton High School alumni on hand to demonstrate that it’s possible to have a high-tech career working for a major corporation while living on the rural Eastern Shore.

Ashley Bowen and Brittany Glennon are sisters who both graduated from Northampton High School, attended James Madison University, returned to the Shore, and now work remotely for big-name tech companies.

Ashley Bowen and Brittany Glennon

Bowen, who lives in Nassawadox, is a content developer for Microsoft. Glennon, who lives in the Cape Charles area, is a package consultant for IBM.

Both minored in computer information systems in college, which they believe made them attractive prospective employees.

They engaged students in conversation about tech careers by asking the students to identify icons of popular Microsoft apps and awarding correct answers with small prizes.

Liz Jones, vice chair of the Northampton school board and parent of an NHS student, said she was pleased with the success of the event and the students had come prepared to ask questions and consider what they want to do after they graduate.

The interiors of the tiny lodges (currently, eight are available) vary.

Tiny lodges

closed for decades.

The lodges are smaller than a regular motel room — but that’s the point. It prompts those staying to gather around the campfire, meet new friends, and get out to experience life.

The overnight accommodations themselves, albeit tiny, are show-places with themed decorations, central air, televisions, and remodeled bathrooms.

They are rooms with a view — the Hawkins’ view that less is more.

And what is ostensibly a story about a remarkable renovation project also became a tale of how two people who could have anything decided having very little was much better.

‘A better life with less’

He’s from Virginia Beach. She’s from Memphis. They had three children, worked hard, built careers, and owned rental properties.

But there was something missing. “I wanted to prove I could have a better life with less,” said Eric Hawkins.

So they moved into a camper at a Virginia Beach campground, where they lived full time.

It was freeing. They pared their belongings to basic essentials.

They found time for new experiences — there was less to maintain and no more grass to cut.

They lost weight — suddenly, there was no extra space in the refrigerator or pantry, and they developed more active lifestyles.

Their relationship grew closer — “If you live in 400 square feet, you’ve got to work it out,” Eric Hawkins said.

They enjoyed traveling more because there was less at home for which to be responsible.

“When you have all that stuff, you’ve got to be able to get back to it quickly,” Sylvia Hawkins said.

Further, with less room indoors, more time is spent outdoors, out enjoying nature or among people.

Life became less isolating and more spontaneous. Without the responsibilities of home, they went where they wanted.

EASTERN SHORE POST/TED SHOCKLEY

Accommodations at a former motor court near Cape Charles have been restored.

Said Eric Hawkins, “Our kids would call us and say, ‘Where are you?’”

Eric Hawkins said he understood his minimalistic approach is contrary to society, which links happiness to belongings and prestige to big homes and big lawns.

“It runs counter to everything we’ve been taught,” he said.

Maybe, he thought, he could help others experience being happier with less.

Minimalist getaway

Sometimes they’d daydream about having a village of tiny homes where people could stay for a few days during a minimalist getaway.

They’d been coming to Cape Charles for decades but decided to wander around and look at other places in Northampton County.

When they came upon the old motor lodge, Eric Hawkins said he stopped in the middle of the road.

“We immediately saw the potential,” he said. It wasn’t for sale and they didn’t know the owner.

But they found out who it was.

And their offer to purchase it was accepted.

Renovating has been a lot of work. Today, eight of the tiny lodges can be rented. More will be available.

A renovated tool shed has hosted a wedding. The Hawkinses live in a small home nearby.

They’ve enjoyed researching the history of the property, which once included a restaurant and fuel station.

Jennifer Hogg, a Northampton native and a faculty member at the University of Virginia whose grandfather owned the motor lodge, has brought Eric Hawkins photos and other items from its heyday.

The Hawkinses are looking forward to another year of hosting guests — and already have seen the impact of their tiny houses on guests.

Eric Hawkins said last year several families met around the campfire.

The next day, Hawkins saw the onetime strangers eating breakfast together in Cape Charles.

“You get to sit on your porch and literally talk to your neighbors,” he said.

OUTDOORS

State land open for spring gobbler season

Located between the Atlantic Ocean and the Chesapeake Bay, the Coastal Forest Wildlife Management Area consists of 54 unique tracts of discontinuous bayside and seaside properties totaling about 8,645 acres — primarily in Accomack County with tracts also located in Northampton County. Formerly owned by Chesapeake Corporation, the newly acquired tracts were managed for lumber and forest production and currently consist of dense secondary growth pine habitat with sparse distribution of some hardwoods.

Strategically situated along the Atlantic Flyway, the Coastal Forest WMA is crucial to millions of avifauna traveling this major migratory route. In addition to the value for migratory bird species, the properties will also furnish quality habitat for upland game species, such as American woodcock, northern bobwhite, and wild turkey. A subset of these properties — including 11 new tracts within the Coastal Forest WMA consisting of nearly 3,700 acres, 328 new acres added to Doe Creek WMA, and 358 new acres added to Saxis WMA — will be open to hunting for spring gobbler season along with the existing hunting opportunities along the Eastern Shore at Doe Creek, Saxis, and Jones Cove. Spring gobbler season begins Saturday, April 8, and continues for seven weeks until May 13. All federal and state laws and county and DWR regulations apply. Information hubs at Doe Creek WMA (Doe Creek WMA map link) and Coastal Forest WMA (Coastal Forest WMA – Tract #51 map link) will contain information, maps, and updates to help hunters find parking areas and access points to these new hunting opportunities. Each parking area will be marked with a DWR sign identifying the tract as part of the Coastal Forest WMA with a tract number and a map to the tract. After the close of Spring Gobbler season on May 13, hunting these areas will be prohibited until otherwise posted.
