On Aug. 14, 1995, human remains were found on Castaway Drive in Captains Cove, part of a collection of body parts found over several weeks near Chincoteague and Assateague islands that were determined to come from one person.

On Oct. 13, 1974, a Black man was fatally injured when he walked into the northbound passing lane of Route 13 in Painter and into the path of a Greyhound bus.

On Jan. 16, 1971, the body of a Black male was found near Willis Wharf in a muddy area of marsh, his hands and feet missing.

On Jan. 16, 1950, the body of a White male was found on a beach near Eastville still wearing gabardine pants and brown shoes.

The human remains recovered in each of the cases have never been identified — no names, no hometowns, no

Two will vie for circuit judge position

BY TED SHOCKLEY Eastern Shore Post

Two Eastern Shore natives with long careers in public service are candidates to be the Eastern Shore's resident circuit court judge, a position that will be vacant at the end of the year.

State Sen. Lynwood W. Lewis Jr., who is retiring after two decades in the General Assembly, and Gordon S. Vincent, who has been the Eastern Shore's General District Court judge for more than 17 years, announced their intentions on Wednesday, Oct. 25, at a meeting of the Eastern Shore Bar Association in Accomac.

W. Revell Lewis III, the Eastern Shore's resident circuit judge since his appointment in 2011, is retiring effective Dec. 31.

It will be up to the bar association, a group of several dozen Eastern Shore lawyers and judges, to recommend one of the candidates to the General Assembly, which makes judicial appointments with the governor's approval.

The General Assembly isn't mandated to select the jurist recommended by the local bar association, but the recommendation carries weight.

"They're going to do what they're going to do, and that's fine," said Jack A. Thornton III, the Northampton County Commonwealth's Attorney and the bar association's leader.

State law mandates that the Eastern Shore have a circuit judge who lives in either Northampton or Accomack county.

The bar association will decide who to recommend by conducting a secret ballot during a Nov. 8 meeting in Northampton County Circuit Court.

Lynwood Lewis, addressing the bar association Wednesday, felt he would bring "some skills and some perspectives" as a jurist.

He began practicing law on the Eastern Shore in 1989 and said his career in private practice and in the General Assembly made him "keenly aware of all the challenges" of practicing law in a rural area.

He also said his reputation in Richmond of working with colleagues regardless of political party would give him "widespread bipartisan support" in the General Assembly.

Vincent practiced law for a firm in South Carolina before returning to his native Eastern Shore in 1989 as a lawyer in private practice. He was named general district court judge in 2006.

Vincent, addressing the bar association, detailed the depth and breadth of cases he handled as an attorney and additional duties, including helping mentor law school students.

He received an award from a state district court judges' association for his additional service.

For several years, Vincent's district court saw the highest number of cases per judge in the state.

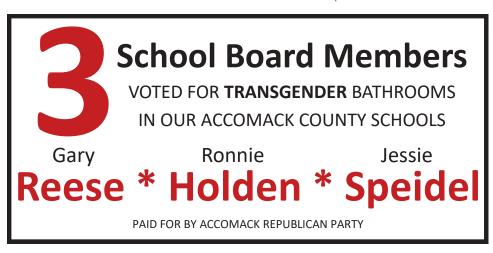

"I'm ready and eager to take on anything that comes in front of the court," he said. "I will be prepared."

Thornton praised Revell Lewis, the retiring circuit judge.

"He's done a wonderful job and surely we'll all miss him," he said.

Northampton DAR cleans cemetery

The Historic Preservation Committee of the Northampton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution participated in the National DAR Day of Service on Oct. 11 with a cemetery preservation and restoration project at the cemetery in Bay Creek on King's Creek in Cape Charles.

After getting approval from the owner of the private property, Claiborne Dickinson and Page Beary led the committee in cleaning the historic tombstones of patriot John Stratton and family, William Burton and his wife, and a Wescoat. The team used DAR-approved conservation treatment that cleans but does not damage the stones.

The DAR was joined by special guest, Dr. David Scott, noted and respected Northampton County historian, who gave a presentation on John Stratton.

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION

In times like these, real school leadership needed

Dominating social media this week was a filmed apology on Facebook by Nandua's football team to Arcadia High School after a chippy game Friday, Oct. 20.

The apology, while well-intentioned, created more questions than it answered. A wave of accusations and innuendo followed.

It is difficult to nail down exactly what happened, but here's the gist:

Some Nandua postgame locker room videos — complete with language coarse enough to strip paint were posted on TikTok, an online short-form video hosting service. We sincerely hope those guys don't kiss their mothers with mouths so filthy.

But there also apparently was a near-dustup between cheerleading teams. Some Nandua-embossed clothing allegedy was stomped on at an Arcadia pep rally. Disciplinary actions were taken, rumor has it.

What is needed after educationally sponsored dumpster fires like this is some public relations savvy and communications talent from an educational leader.

But Accomack County Superintendent Rhonda Hall refused to comment Wednesday about it, hiding behind the excuse that student and personnel matters are private. That's an inadequate response.

When asked by this publication for her view on the matter, she didn't express even generic disapproval for the bad behavior. She didn't even condemn the potty-mouth TikTok videos, which had been viewed 24,000 times before they were taken down.

All in all, it was a bad sequence of events, funded by your tax dollars.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Will not be voting for Cedrick Cooper

To the editor:

My wife and I were asked to help with Cedrick Cooper's campaign. We were glad to help because we viewed the Coopers as friends.

We worked on a campaign with the Coopers before and looked forward to helping Cedrick Cooper. We think so much of Sammy Cooper that, a year ago, we asked him to marry us.

All was going well until we were told about the Gaskins Chapel video. We watched it five times and each time made us even more upset. It actually made me physically ill.

I could not get my mind around what I had just heard from Ronnie Holden and Cedrick Cooper. I was shocked and hurt.

My wife and I were invested in getting Cedrick Cooper elected. The reality was that we were being used.

I thought we were friends.

I could not understand why Holden and Cedrick Cooper made such ugly statements.

I didn't know how to handle the situation. I felt surely he had an answer for his remarks so I called him. We spoke for an hour. I asked him what he was thinking.

His response was, "You don't understand what I was saying." I told him that I understood exactly what he was saying.

I wanted to know who the "they" were in his statement, "if we stick together, they fear us."

He said, "I didn't mean you and Linda (my wife), I meant the rest of them."

I said, "Who is 'the rest of them,' the 51% of the voters you need to win?"

I asked him to make a statement to get out in front of this. He had no interest in apologizing or giving an explanation.

His statement was, "We have to realize that some people want things to go back to how they used to be."

After our conversation, I realized that I could not work for his campaign any longer. There was no remorse in his remarks. I wished him the best and said good night.

A local marriage celebrant who admits to discrimination

Cape Charles residents JoAnn Bawiec and Lori Smith, who have long been a couple, decided Friday, Oct. 20, to get their marriage license.

They went to the courthouse in Eastville and were heartened by everyone's warmth and kindness.

"They were absolutely lovely cheerleaders," said Bawiec.

Someone said there was a marriage celebrant on site — and the marriage ceremony could be performed that day.

That's because one of the county's designated marriage celebrants, Mable Owens, happens to work in the same building.

Bawiec and Smith were taken aback by Owens' response.

"She said, 'I do not do same-sex marriages," Bawiec said.

"In that moment, we were kind of stunned," she said. "My partner immediately started crying. It was something that was so unexpected for us."

It was another clash of beliefs and sensibilities — the types of clashes that define our world these days.

These collisions aren't minor fender-benders where nobody gets hurt.

They are jarring crashes where

Ted Shockley freedoms, re-Her ligions, laws, ered a feelings, hard-have o earned rights, ings a and long-held But convictions run ernme together, and ly. Ar the injuries are approx deep. It's the type of stuff you see on the national television news.

numerous and

But it also happens in quaint Eastville to people who never, ever, sought or asked to be in the local newspaper as the poster children for any movement or ideology.

Contacted later, Owens matter-of-factly defended her views.

"I don't do those marriages. I don't want to," said Owens, who said samesex marriages are contrary to her religious beliefs.

"I don't feel comfortable with it," she said, adding, "Nobody can change that."

The Eastern Shore is a place where many people are fervently religious and probably understand Owens' refusal. Her own beliefs need to be considered and respected — we all deserve to have our beliefs, thoughts, and feelings acknowledged and regarded.

But people who work for the government must serve everyone equally. And being one of the circuit court's approved marriage celebrants makes it against the law for her to discriminate.

Further, it is not a good look for a county or a court to have one of its representatives admit to openly practicing discrimination of any sort.

"She's a representative of the court, in a county, in a state, and the law says you can't do this," Bawiec said.

Owens said she has homosexual relatives and implied their lifestyle choices don't bother her.

"I don't tell people how to live," she said. But when conducting her work as a court-approved marriage celebrant, "I feel like I can pick and choose like I want to."

As Eastern Shore residents, some of us consider ourselves part of a special place where we help, depend on, and respect each other, no matter the background or circumstances.

But maybe that's incorrect and our community unity is a falsehood we use to soothe ourselves.

Sometimes I wonder if gathering and talking openly about our differences and commonalities can create understanding and bring us closer.

Perhaps we could focus on what unites us instead of what divides us while identifying and understanding those topics on which we don't agree.

If Owens were White and admitted to a reporter that she refused to marry a Black couple, it would have been an explosive story — the type of stuff you see on national television news.

But discrimination isn't always color-based. It isn't always overt. And sometimes it happens in the halls of power in a rural county seat.

"The church has turned us away and finally we get some legal rights," said Bawiec of homosexuals.

"There are people who are much braver than me — who have fought a lot longer — for me to simply get married," she said.

But last Friday in Northampton County, getting married wasn't so simple.

feeling of betrayal still lingers. Comments made from the pulpit made me realize the "hidden agenda" was not known by anyone but the Coopers.

Politics is a contact sport. It is a contest between opponents and the people pick the best candidate.

This event lays open the ugly truth. Winning at all costs is what matters most.

When you pander in church, deceive with your campaign signs, and tell untruths to friends, it exposes the real agenda. It tells you all you need to know about the character of the candidate.

Likes Brockmeier for Onancock council

To the editor:

There are many in Onancock who dedicate countless personal hours to making the town a better place to live. We are lucky to have them. The ones who stick with it seem to be driven by an inner passion, strong community spirit, and a vision for "what can be." They are leaders who work collaboratively and seek to unify. One of these people is Brandon Brockmeier, who is running to maintain his seat on the Onancock Town Council.

I have had the pleasure of knowing Brandon and his wife, Kerry, since they moved next door to me in 2020. While I liked them immediately, selfishly, I just hoped they would remove the dilapidated fence in the backyard. Happily, the fence did quickly disappear.

Even faster was the start of Brandon's leadership and volunteerism in Onancock. One example is the "Great Pumpkin Carve" he and Kerry put on. Now in its third year, this event typifies Brandon's vision, ability to execute, and passion for creating a unifying town spirit. Simply put, when Brandon gets involved, good things happen.

He has proven to be an effective Onancock Town Council member. He is a practical, strategic, and visionary contributor. He looks to draw consensus and get things done for the town. Most importantly, Brandon is a unifying presence in Onancock as we build on town strengths and address challenges. As a devoted dad of two teenagers, he also brings an important perspective to council as they seek to meet the needs of all age groups.

In my book, town leadership candidates need to demonstrate they are truly vested in the community. Talk is not enough. Proof is visible in what candidates have already done, not just what they say they will do. Brandon's three-year Onancock resume makes a strong case.

In addition to being on the town council and starting the "Great Pumpkin Carve," he is on the town planning commission, has chaired the ice-cream social, is an Adopt-a-Highway volunteer, a parade judge, and is a recipient of the Guiness Toast for Volunteerism.

Please consider voting for Brandon for Onancock Town Council on Nov. 7 or in early voting until Nov. 3.

Mr. Wesley E. Hughes Jr., a cherished father, grandfather, and fiancé, passed away at home in La Plata. Md. on Oct. 19, 2023. Born in Norfolk on Jan. 25, 1944, Wes was a devoted Hokie, career banker, pilot, golfer, and dedicated community volunteer. He is survived by his daughter, son-in-law, and granddaughter, Lisa,

Justin, and Daphne Wilde of Towson, Md.; and long-term beloved fiancée, Esther Corpus; her daughters, Maricris and Michelle; and granddaughter, Madison.

Wes was preceded in death by his wife of 26 years, Eileen P. Hughes; son, Steven J. Hughes; and his parents, Wesley E. Hughes Sr. and Virginia Smith Hughes.

Mr. Hughes

His life was marked by compassion and service.

Raised in Virginia Beach, Wes was an alumnus of Princess Anne High School, where he had many friends and honed his intellect and character. His journey continued at Virginia Tech, where he not only pursued academic excellence, but also found a home in the TEK fraternity. The bonds forged during both his high school and college years remained steadfast throughout his life through football games and formal and informal reunions.

Wes's business degree started the professional path which led him to the world of banking. He served as the president of the Bank of Southern Maryland in La Plata for many years, where his commitment to financial stewardship touched countless lives. He believed that prosperity should be shared, and he worked tirelessly to uplift others. Nowhere was this more apparent than during his years serving as president of the Charles County Chamber of Commerce, and his terms as president of the Blue Knights Football league and the La Plata Lions club.

Beyond the walls of the bank, Wes soared — quite literally as a private pilot. His love for flying knew no bounds. and he especially enjoyed flights with his daughter, Lisa, during her teenage years. Wes also used his plane and piloting skills to serve those in need. Ailing patients and rescued animals were common companions in his plane as he volunteered with Pilots and Paws and Patients Airlift Services to transport passengers to places where help awaited them.

Wes was a member and treasurer of the Patuxent QBs (Quiet Birdmen), an honorary aviation fraternity made up of mostly professional and military pilots worldwide. The most important requirement is "you must be a good guy," and Wes had no problem meeting that requirement. QBs toast their departed with a silent toast to the west and Wes will be among those.

In recent years, Wes regularly soared across the Chesapeake Bay to Melfa, where he enjoyed golfing and attending events with Esther and fellow members of the Eastern Shore Yacht and Country Club.

Other times, Wes loved to head to Towson to spend time with his beloved granddaughter, Daphne. Her drawings covered his kitchen and photos of her filled his mantel.

Wes's life was a tapestry woven with passion, adventure, fun, and unwavering commitment. Wesley Hughes touched countless hearts and his absence will be deeply felt by those who shared laughter, stories, and cherished moments with him.

May Wes's final flight be one of peace and eternal life.

A memorial mass to honor Wes will be celebrated by Fr. Mike Imperial on Wednesday, Nov. 8, 2023, at 11:00 a.m. at St. Peter The Apostle Catholic Church, 25236 Coastal Blvd., Onley, VA 23418.

Thousands attend summer concert series in park

BY STEFANIE JACKSON Eastern Shore Post

The annual free summer concert series in Cape Charles Central Park, which draws visitors from both sides of the Chesapeake Bay, may have been the most well-attended to date, according to estimates.

A total of around 15,000 people attended the 12 concerts, according to a conservative estimate by Hank Mayer, president of Cape Charles Citizens for Central Park, the nonprofit that organizes the concert series.

The Deloreans band had the biggest draw, about 2,000 people — but even that estimate may be well short.

According to a location intelligence and foot traffic data company, as many as 3,800 people attended the concert.

Concerts

The success of Concerts in the Park this year likely was due in part to a $6,000 marketing grant from the Virginia Tourism Corporation, which the citizens group used for advertising in print and on social media.

The print ads targeted local residents and the social media ads attracted concertgoers from west of the Chesapeake Bay, Mayer said.

The ad campaign helped bring Cape Charles more day-trippers, visitors who don't stay overnight.

The typical day-tripper may drive 2 or 2.5 hours to Cape Charles, go to the beach during the day, and attend a concert in the park in the evening.

Each concert runs until around 9 p.m., allowing travel time for visitors to return home, Mayer said.

Due to a rise in the number of day-trippers visiting Cape Charles, more restaurants are opening in town and meals tax revenues are increasing, he said.

Transient occupancy tax revenue, which is collected by hotels, bed-and-breakfasts, and other overnight accommodations, is also on the rise, Mayer added.

The increase in tax revenue indicates the further success of many of the concert series' biggest sponsors, including restaurants, a hotel, a short-term-rental homeowners group, and real estate agencies.

The citizens group is looking forward to building on its recent efforts to make Concerts in the Park even better next year.

Already scheduled to return in 2024 are The Deloreans and favorites like Good Shot Judy and The English Channel.

This was the first year a food court was set up at Central Park for the concerts, and with the help of an $8,000 Northampton County grant, Cape Charles and the citizens group are investing $12,000 in underground electric service to allow mobile food vendors to operate without the use of generators in 2024.

The group also wants to continue hiring more bands that play popular music.

Mayer said, "What we're trying to do in '24 is do more of that ... bands that people really like to sing to, dance to ... and match it with more social media."

Orchestera of the Eastern Shore has two performances this weekend

The Orchestra of the Eastern Shore, under the direction of Paul Kim, begins its 25th season with "A Glimpse into Paradise."

The performance will include Mozart's Horn Concerto in E-Flat Major K 425 with soloist Jacob Wilder, who is the Principal Horn at the Virginia Symphony Orchestra.

It will also feature Faure's Requiem with singers from Old Dominion University and the Eastern Shore. The concerts will be held on Friday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at Market Street Methodist Church in Onancock and on Sunday, Oct. 29, at 4 p.m at Hungars Episcopal Church, Bridgetown. Both concerts are free; however, donations are welcomed.

Kim will be leaving his position as conductor of the orchestra in May 2024 because of increasing family and work commitments.

Kim has been the director since 2014. He also serves as director of orchestral activities at Old Dominion University and is a professional conductor, violinist, and composer.

Orchestra members who have been challenged and inspired by Kim said they are grateful for his leadership.

Kim has agreed to assist the orchestra in recruiting a new orchestra leader.

Large wahoo among recent offshore catches

Windy weather continues to hamper access to some of the most enjoyable fishing of the year. Anglers have enjoyed catches of speckled trout, puppy drum, and flounder during the breaks in the weather.

> Upper Shore

Bill Hall

Captain Matt Abell, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that most of his customers' focus has been directed at red drum and rockfish in the middle Chesapeake Bay.

As the supply of natural baits has started to decline, anglers have begun to shift to casting and trolling artificials, such as Assassins, Rumble Fish, Old Skool paddletails, Rap-10s, and an assortment of top water lures.

The long-awaited clearing of the middle bay waters seems to have increased the aggressiveness of the two aforementioned species, resulting in more productive catches on artificial baits.

Creek mouths and shallow water structures remain productive locations for casting artificials, such as the Spro Wake Baits.

Upper Shore seaside fishing has still been hampered by the effects of the recent winds, though flounder fishing has been better than one would expect, especially during the short span of cleaner water during slack tides.

A few red drum have been landed in the surf. Recent offshore blue water catches have included blue marlin, dolphin (mahi mahi), wahoo, and even a couple of swordfish.

Jonathon Daughton needed some assistance holding up his 30-pound wahoo caught aboard the Aquaholic out of Chincoteague.

Most of the offshore vessels have sailed out of Ocean City, Md., with a few venturing out from Chincoteague. The offshore wrecks are still holding plenty of black sea bass. Look for catches of tautog to start on the wrecks during the month of November.

Chincoteague

I spoke with Jimmy Vasiliou, at Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle, and he told me that the flounder bite around the island has produced several large fish, with some anglers landing their personal record-sized flounder around the sea walls.

Speckled trout catches, including some citation-sized fish, have come from some of the creeks around the island. Offshore catches over the week have included a citation-sized wahoo, swordfish, and dolphin (mahi mahi) on the weedlines.

Catches in the surf have consisted of spot, kingfish (whiting), bluefish, and a few red drum.

Wachapreague

Captain Lindsay Paul, aboard the Almost Persuaded, admitted that there has not been a lot of angling activity out of Wachapreague in the last week due to the windy conditions. He was hoping that the better conditions occurring later this week would bring about an improvement.

Lower Shore

Dan Bell, at Oceans East — Eastern Shore, said that there are "lots" of keeper-sized flounder being caught around the Kiptopeke State Park pier, allowing anglers the opportunity to catch a limit of the tasty flatfish even when sloppy weather conditions prevent boating access.

The puppy drum bite was described as "great" from Cherrystone down to Wise Point, with some school-sized rockfish also being caught in the same areas. Both have been hitting soft plastic baits. The current size limit for rockfish on the bayside is 20 to 31 inches in length.

Dan added that there are still a few big red drum hanging out around the third island of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. The third island is also producing catches of sheepshead and a few early season tautog, although most of the tautog have been undersized.

The speckled trout bite between Hungars and Wise Point, as well as on the seaside, is still strong with lots of keeper-sized fish being boated on Mirrolures and soft plastic baits.

Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Bait & Tackle, told me that the weather has been a large factor over the last week, saying, "The wind has been nonstop." When anglers have been able to get on the water, they've found that the speckled trout action was still strong along the bayside, using Mirrolures and soft plastic baits.

Puppy drum catches were reported in some of the lower bayside creeks for anglers fishing soft plastics with popping corks. Schoolie-sized striped bass are starting to show in the early evenings and after sundown under the pier lights and along lit docks. Again, the legal bayside size slot is 20 to 31 inches.

Jeb said that some sheepshead are still around the bridge-tunnel, but the recent windy weather has severely limited access to the open waters. Spot and small gray trout are being seen on the lower bay piers, according to Brady.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Vikings hold Raiders scoreless in second half; overcome four-point deficit to win

BY KINSEY RAYFIELD

Special to the Eastern Shore Post

The Broadwater Vikings football team traveled to Southampton Academy on Thursday, Oct. 19, and edged out the homesteading Raiders by a score of 14-12.

The Vikings entered the game without their starting quarterback Logan Hickman. The Vikings kicked off to Southampton Academy. The Raiders held the ball for the first 10 minutes of the quarter. A final second score by Southampton Academy ended the first quarter with the Raiders leading the Vikings 6-0.

A hand-off in the second quarter from quarterback Cohen Kellam to Jacob Seltzer led to a 68-yard touchdown run. Kellam handed the ball off to Steven Ye for the two-point conversion to give the Vikings the 8-6 lead.

Southampton took back the lead with a passing touchdown late in the second quarter. The score at halftime was 12-8.

In the third quarter, Logan Hickman was back in at quarterback following a prior game injury. Two long drives by the Vikings ended with interceptions. It was a scoreless third quarter, leaving the Vikings still trailing by four.

Senior quarterback Hickman answered for the Vikings in the fourth quarter with a 60-yard quarterback-keeper touchdown. The Vikings got the ball back with six minutes left and managed to run the clock down to two minutes. Broadwater got the ball back in the final seconds and took a knee to conclude the game.

Seltzer had 17 carries for 145 yards and a 68-yard touchdown run. Hickman had three carries for 65 yards and a 60-yard touchdown run. Rufus Abbott had six receptions for 101 yards. Senior Quinn Ames had one reception for 23 yards. Hickman went 7 for 14, passing for 102 yards and two interceptions. Kellam went 1 for 2, passing for 23 yards.

Defensively, the Vikings were led by Abbott with eight tackles and three assisted tackles. Key defensive stars for the Vikings included Ye, Luke Duer, Olsen Pruitt, and John Lewis. A defensive highlight for the Vikings was not letting the Raiders score the whole second half of the game. The strong defense forced a turnover in the final seconds of the game to capture the victory.

The Vikings will be on the road Saturday, Oct. 28, at Brunswick Academy for a 2 p.m. kickoff.

Healthy Warriors roll past rival Firebirds

BY MARK MORING

Eastern Shore Post

For weeks, Nandua High School's football team was missing several key players who were out with injuries. But the Warriors were back at full strength last Friday, Oct. 20, against visiting Arcadia in a highly anticipated Eastern Shore District showdown.

The Warriors rolled to a 50-16 victory on Senior Night behind a potent and balanced offensive attack. Overall, Nandua's team speed proved too much for the Firebirds.

Nandua improved to 3-5 overall and 1-0 in the district. Arcadia fell to 6-4 and 0-1.

Seniors Isaac Stodghill and Makai Dorn, playing their final home games, led the way. Stodghill, a quarterback, threw for 162 yards and three touchdowns. Dorn, a running back, ran for 59 yards and three scores.

Sophomore Nazere Blake caught two touchdown passes, and senior Reco Kellam caught another.

Eli Parker had a solid all-around game, playing several positions — receiver, linebacker, defensive back, and kick/punt returner. He returned one punt 57 yards to set up a touchdown, and had a long interception return to set up another. He also returned a punt 50 yards for a touchdown, but it was called back on a penalty.

The game seemed like it would be a tight contest after the first quarter, with the score tied 8-8. But Nandua scored four times in the last 6:57 of the second quarter to go up 35-8 at the half. The Warriors stretched it to 50-8 before Arcadia scored again late.

Senior quarterback Bradley Hall threw two touchdown passes for the Firebirds, both to fellow senior Rico Bugg, one for 90 yards and one for 25.

Nandua lost junior fullback Austin Wert to a knee injury early in the game. He is likely out for the rest of the season.

Town is selling water plant for less than it cost

BY STEFANIE JACKSON Eastern Shore Post

Cape Charles is set to receive significant financial benefits from the sale of its water plant even though the facility is being sold for less than it cost to build.

"It's just so much more complicated than just looking at the book value and saying, 'Why aren't we getting that?'" said Town Manager John Hozey on Tuesday, Oct. 24.

The Cape Charles Town Council approved the sale of the water plant to private company Virginia American Water in November 2022.

According to the proposed sales agreement, Virginia American Water will pay up to $15 million for the water plant, which was built for about $20 million.

However, the agreement establishes additional financial obligations by Virginia American Water, which will make the sale financially beneficial to Cape Charles.

For example, Virginia American Water is required to invest $10 million in water plant improvements within its first eight years of ownership.

Virginia American Water spreads its costs over thousands of customers throughout the state, allowing it to offer consolidated rates. This will mean reduced water costs to Cape Charles residents.

Furthermore, the sale to Virginia American Water presents the opportunity for Cape Charles to retire its debt on the water plant, "reducing pressure on our general fund and our property tax requirements," Hozey said.

The town owes roughly 6.5 million on the water plant, he added.

"We're getting so many other things that you have to take the big picture of this when you're considering the value — which is what the council did, and it's why the council approved it," he said of the sale.

The sale of the water plant cannot be finalized without the approval of Virginia's State Corporation Commission, which regulates utilities.

The application to sell the Cape

Charles water plant to Virginia American Water was submitted to the State Corporation Commission in or around June, Hozey said.

The SCC scheduled a public hearing on the matter for Feb. 13, 2024.

Before then, the SCC will do its due diligence and complete tasks such as an independent appraisal of the water plant, Hozey said.

The sales price of the water plant will be the average of three separate appraisals completed by the SCC, Virginia American Water, and the town of Cape Charles.

Hozey said, "It's a complex transaction, and that's why we spent a lot of time working on it. We hired consultants, and council spent a lot of time on it and ... determined that it was in the town's best interest."

"Parents and teachers know the kids best! I will listen to each and every one to make the decisions that reflect Accomack County's values and goals, keep our kids safe, and meet the individual needs of all students so they can learn, succeed, and grow."

It will be held Thursday, Nov. 2. beginning at 9 a.m. at the Kiptopeke State Park Hawk Watch parking lot.

The program is free and the public is invited to attend. Always be prepared for ticks, the sun, mosquitoes, and the weather. For more information contact Maggie Long at 610-500-9971.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE/COMMUNITY ORIENTED POLICE SERVICES NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY OF DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT DRAFT FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT IMPLEMENTATION OF NEW REGIONAL PUBLIC SAFETY RADIO SYSTEM EASTERN SHORE OF VIRGINIA – ACCOMACK AND NORTHAMPTON COUNTIES, VA

Interested parties are notified the Department of Justice (DOJ) through the Community Oriented Police Servies (COPS) Program issued a draft Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), based on an Environmental Assessment (EA) provided by the Eastern Shore of Virginia 9-1-1 Commission (ESVA 9-1-1 Commission). The purpose of the EA is to assess the effects on the human and natural environment on the ESVA 9-1-1 Commission's implementation of a new radio system (serving local public safety and other local governmental communications needs) for which the COPS program is providing funding assistance approved by the United States.

The proposed project, the implementation of a P25, trunked, digital, simulcast regional radio system, will utilize towers/facilities located at the following locations: 1. American Communications Tower (located at/around 6150 Community Drive, Chincoteague, VA), 2. Town of Chincoteague/CPD Tower (located at/around 6150 Community Drive, Chincoteague, VA), 3. Accomack County Tower (located at around 14306 Lankford Highway, Mappsville, VA), 4. Accomack County Tower (located at/around 23323 Wise Court, Accomac, VA), 5. Commonwealth of Virginia/State Police Tower (located at/around 20371 Seaside Road, Eastville, VA).

Public safety agencies on the Eastern Shore of Virginia (ESVA), including law enforcement, fire, emergency medical services, and 9-1-1/dispatch utilize wireless communication networks as a critical aspect of their operations. These uses of the radio systems, with older/antiquated disparate systems used in the ESVA region, include communications to/from dispatch and field personnel, as well as communications between field personnel operating at an emergency incident. The current radio systems in the ESVA region are older and degrading with frequent performance issues, such as coverage gaps and a lack of needed interoperability for different public safety disciplines. Operating on the current, inefficient radio systems not only impacts public safety personnel, but their ability to best serve the public and their critical needs during emergencies. A properly performing radio system provides this increased coverage, efficiency, and effectiveness to operations, thereby promoting the public's safety and their welfare; which is the purpose of this project.

The purpose of the Draft EA is to analyze the potential environmental impacts associated with the use and needed construction at the identified tower sites/locations. The draft FONSI, from the COPS program, affirms the proposed action will not have a significant impact on the human and natural environment. The draft EA and draft FONSI will be made available for review at the Eastern Shore of Virginia 9-1-1 Commission at 23201 Front Street, Accomac, VA 23301. The draft FONSI also can be viewed at the 9-1-1 Commission's website at www.esva911.org. The public notice is being published in the Eastern Shore Post and at the tower sites/locations identified. The ESVA 9-1-1 Commission invites the public to comment on the proposed action during a thirty (30) day comment period, which will conclude on November 26th, 2023. Written comments may be mailed to: ESVA 9-1-1 Commission, 9-1-1 Director, P.O. Box 337, Accomac, VA 23301. Comments also may be e-mailed to 911esva@co.northampton.va.us or faxed to 757-787-1044. If no substantive comments are received, the draft Environmental Assessment (EA) will become final, leading to a Final Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) being issued.

Volunteers can help "Catch the King" tide this weekend in a crowdsourcing event to collect data on flooding during the highest tides of the year.

Their input will help researchers refine models they use to predict local flooding, said Cora Baird, site director for the University of Virginia's Virginia Coast Reserve Long-Term Ecological Research Center in Oyster.

"There are so many projects going on now where scholars are trying to map flooding on the Eastern Shore," Baird said.

"This project allows those of us living on the Shore to go out and say, 'Here's where the water truly is' and the scientists can pull that and ... make their predictions more accurate," she said.

Hampton Roads nonprofit Wetlands Watch has hosted Catch the King each fall since 2017.

The event's name refers to the flooding that occurs during the king tide, when the full or new moon orbits closest to the Earth and its gravitational pull elevates sea levels.

Hundred of citizen scientists donning rain boots and smartphones register for the event each year and drop thousands of pins using the SeaLevelRise app to show where flooding is taking place.

Last year, only one volunteer participated on the Eastern Shore, Baird said.

The Hampton Roads area, including the Eastern Shore, is second only to New Orleans in the nation in its vulnerability to sea-level rise, according to scientists.

As floods grow more severe, events such as the king tide can provide a glimpse into the future.

"It can keep people from getting to work, it can keep people from getting to school, it can keep people from working on the water," Baird said of flooding.

"We're going to see more and more of this on the Shore," she said, so mapping the highest tides of the year can provide "a proxy for what tides will look like in the future."

Groups such as the Virginia Institute of Marine Science will use data the public collects to improve flood models and check their accuracy, she said.

The crowdsourcing efforts provide just one piece of a larger puzzle she and others are working to solve in the Eastern Shore of Virginia Climate Equity Project.

The five-year, $5 million initiative aims to provide a roadmap to help inform local decisions about how to address climate change in a way that is fair to all residents.

The National Science Foundation Coastlines and People grant-funded project launched in early 2022, when researchers assembled a community advisory group to engage residents on the Eastern Shore.

Last year, project leaders held a climate equity workshop where over 70 community members shared their concerns.

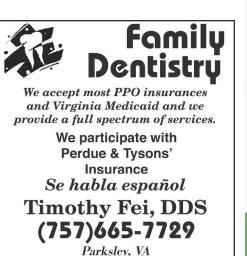

Another workshop is planned for early 2024, Baird said.

"The Climate Equity Project is trying to understand how changes on the Eastern Shore around water and climate ... create different burdens for different people," she said.

"The goal at the end of that is to provide a decision-support tool that has been approved by community leaders," she said.

"This is information that people at the county level and in other localities can see when they're deciding how to best allocate support, resources, funds, et cetera" for adapting to climate change and improving resilience, Baird said.

She hopes volunteers here will capture flooding in areas beyond the "usual suspects" such as Onancock, Cashville, Oyster, Wachapreague, and Chincoteague during the weekend's high tides.

"In some ways, the most exciting part of that would be if people send us information in areas we're not expecting to look," Baird said.

Researchers might even use the SeaLevelRise app in the future to map other flood events on the Eastern Shore, such as those caused by heavy rains, she said.

Visit www.wetlandswatch.org/ catchtheking to learn more about Catch the King and to register for the event. Those participating need a smartphone to download the SeaLevelRise app to drop pins marking the waterline.

Volunteers do not need to register for a training, though there is a virtual training on how to use the flood-mapping app on the website.

Flooding will peak Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 28 and 29, though volunteers can map coastal flooding Friday, Oct. 27, too.

Participants should plan to map within about an hour before and after high tide. Find your local tidal station and tide times at https://tinyurlcom/yyaxar47 or in the tide table in the Eastern Shore Post.

Town may donate land to Habitat for Humanity

BY CLARA VAUGHN

Eastern Shore Post

Onancock is considering donating land in the town's northeast neighborhood to Habitat for Humanity to build a new single-family home.

The town bought the land at 9 Watson St. for $2,000 in 2019, Town Manager Matt Spuck said in an update to the town council Monday, Oct. 23.

The site meets Habitat's goal of pursuing an "infill approach" to building houses in established neighborhoods, versus building in empty areas such as fields.

"We have some lots, but we're going to run out of property in about two or three years and we're scrambling to find more parcels of land where we can build our houses," said Executive Director of Eastern Shore of Virginia Habitat for Humanity Chris Guvernator in a presentation to the town council last month.

"We're specifically looking at northeast Onancock," he said. "We're looking at trying to find property in that area to build a house."

If the plan moves forward, the agreement between Onancock and Habitat for Humanity will require Habitat to get a building permit within a year of receiving the property from the town.

It would require Habitat to start building the house within 120 days of receiving a permit.

Onancock would charge Habitat for Humanity current sewer and water connection fees of $6,900, and the group would install new water and sewer service lines from the curb to the new house, according to the proposed agreement.

Habitat for Humanity has constructed over 50 homes for lowand moderate-income families on the Shore since 1988, Guvernator said.

"We try to build equity through owner-occupied housing," he said, adding Habitat partners with families that would otherwise not qualify for a typical residential loan.

The group builds one or two houses each year to sell to selected families with a low- or no-interest loan, but is working to boost that to three or four homes each year to help meet the need for affordable housing on the Shore, he said.

Homeowners work 350 "sweat-equity hours" on their houses and receive financial and home ownership training through Habitat's program, Guvernator said.

"Our mission is to build strength, stability, and self-reliance through safe and affordable housing," he said.

"I have confidence in Habitat. You have a great record," Councilmember Joy Marino said.

The Onancock Town Council will hold a public hearing Monday, Nov. 27 to hear citizens' input on the proposed project at 9 Watson St.

Sidewalk planning grant

Onancock is considering adding new sidewalks in town.

The town council during its meeting Monday, Oct. 23, heard a presentation on the Virginia

Department of Transportation's Ready, Set, Go! grant program, which funds planning work including engineering designs, cost estimates, and timelines for future construction projects.

Onancock will pursue the planning grant to create designs for a 116-foot sidewalk on Ames Street, connecting Queen and Market streets, and another sidewalk on Market Street between Hill and Hall streets, where Corner Mart and the laundromat are located.

The grant could also include a crosswalk study for intersection and mid-block crossings in town.

"I think it's a good idea," Councilmember Brandon Brockmeier said of applying for the planning grant.

"People use the easiest path for them, which isn't necessarily the safest one," he said.

The Ready, Set, Go! program has no cost to the town. If Onancock decides to build the sidewalks designed through the program, the town will contribute 20% of construction costs through VDOT's Transportation Alternative Program, a grant to build projects such as sidewalks and bike paths.

Construction costs will be determined through the Ready, Set, Go! grant, if VDOT awards funds to Onancock.

Unnamed remains

ages.

Even though all four cases made regional newspapers, family and friends of the missing were never located.

There were no funerals and no headstones inscribed with their names. From somewhere they vanished — and their bodies appeared on the Eastern Shore.

"We don't know the names of these people, but they were somebody's someone," said Lara Newell, the coordinator for long-term unidentified remains for the state's health department.

Newell works to find the names and families of the hundreds of unidentified remains that have been found across Virginia.

Somewhere, there are relatives and friends who wonder where they went or why they disappeared.

"As a mom — but also as a person — I would hate to never know, if I were in this situation," she said.

The circumstances of how the remains were found — three were discovered completely by accident by people living their workaday lives — lend a haunting aura to what are authentic Eastern Shore mysteries.

'All these clues'

During the Halloween season, people seek out manufactured opportunities to be startled or spooked.

But during the summer of 1995, pieces of a horrifying puzzle continued to wash up on the shores of Chincoteague Bay.

A headless, limbless torso was found in the Captains Cove neighborhood near the shoreline, according to a newspaper report.

Weeks earlier, a human foot was found on Assateague Island. A leg was found three days later on Chincoteague Island.

A week later, a foot was found in a shoe.

'We don't know the names of these people, but they were somebody's someone.'

Laura Newell Virginia long-term unidentified remains coordinator

It all was determined to be from the same White male, said Newell — there were no duplicate bones and the clothing was similar, said Newell.

According to NamUs, a national website for the missing and unidentified, items found on the body included a New York City subway token and a red ink pen inscribed "Lipizzana Restaurant, 987 Second Ave. N.Y."

"You have to take all these clues," said Newell, who has researched missing persons from New York in search of a match.

Also found with the body were the typical trappings of an ordinary day: a tube of ChapStick, a black comb, headphones — and, in a dark irony, a pack of Lifesavers candy.

Newell said modern scientific developments like genetic matching have assisted with searches.

Years ago, the remains would have been interred in an anonymous grave.

But in recent decades, unidentified remains have been held by the state — so the bodies won't need to be exhumed when matches are made.

The body of the man found at Captains Cove and around Chincoteague Bay almost 30 years ago has never been interred.

"We keep them at the office until identified," said Newell. "We would like to give them back to their families."

'Very limited information'

The Eastern Shore has at least two characteristics that complicate naming unidentified remains.

One is that it is surrounded on three sides by tidal waters.

"People can go into the water from anywhere," said Newell. "Sometimes they wash up in Virginia."

The area also historically has hosted thousands of migrant laborers each summer to harvest crops. Language barriers and distance from relatives made identifying remains harder.

The man who was hit in 1974 by a Greyhound bus in Painter was "believed to be a migrant laborer living at a nearby camp," according to a newspaper account.

The skeleton found in 1971 near Willis Wharf in a section of marsh near a farm field "was found near the site of a migrant labor camp," a newspaper article reported.

"One police officer said there are indications the skeleton was that of a small person, possibly a teenager," the article read.

Newspaper coverage in 1950 of the recovery of a White man's body at a beach near Eastville included specific dental records.

"The man had one gold jaw tooth and one molar missing," the story revealed.

The only other clue that could lead to his identity was "a laundry mark on his shirt." The piece of clothing was sent to the FBI in Washington, D.C., the article stated.

Almost 74 years later, Newell doesn't have many other clues about the case — or about the others involving Accomack and Northampton counties.

"For these, we have very limited information," she said.

Somewhere, there are relatives and friends who wonder where they went or why they disappeared.

Their bodies were found on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Their identities remain unknown to anyone.

Early Detection is Key!

The earlier breast cancer is detected, the easier it is to treat.

One in eight women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in their lifetime. Screenings help find cancer early, before you have any signs or symptoms.

riversideonline.com/breastcancer

SCHEDULE YOUR MAMMOGRAM TODAY!

If you are uninsured, unable to qualify for Medicaid or Medicare and unable to afford your annual screening mammogram, please contact our Cancer Outreach Office for assistance at 1-800-520-7006. Riverside is able to offer screening mammograms and cervical cancer screenings at no cost to eligible women through the grant support of the Every Woman's Life program.

Knowing the three components of early detection may save your life or the life of those you love.

Clinical Breast Exam

At age 25, have a clinical breast exam performed by your health care provider every three years, then yearly beginning age 40.

Mammograms

Begin annual screening mammograms at age 40; earlier if you are at high risk due to personal or family history. Consider tomosynthesis, otherwise known as a 3D mammogram.

Breast Self-Awareness

You know what is normal for your breasts. A change does not always indicate breast cancer. Still, be alert for the following:

- A lump in the breast or under the arm
- Skin changes, including a dimple, redness, or thickening
- Change in breast shape or size
- Nipple discharge
- Scaling or redness of the nipple and/or areola
- Nipple retraction or deviation
- New breast pain

If you notice any of these signs or something that doesn't look or feel quite right, notify your health care provider immediately.

New Road's second phase construction postponed

BY STEFANIE JACKSON

Eastern Shore Post

Construction of the second part of New Road's Legacy Project in Exmore will not begin Nov. 1 as originally planned, but Ava Wise, executive director of the New Road Community Development Group, is undeterred.

"We can go on and on and on about why costs are where they are, but at the bottom line, they are what they are," she said.

Instead of dwelling on cost escalations or considering downgrading or downsizing the project, Wise is working to acquire more funding so the project can move forward.

"I was not prepared for 25% cost increases, so ... right now, we're just kind of ... in a holding pattern until I can raise some more money," Wise said.

The second phase of New Road's Legacy Project, when complete, will have a total of 47 units, including 35 on the south side of Ruth Wise Road.

The project will feature various types of housing and both rental and ownership options to meet the needs of families of different sizes with low and middle incomes.

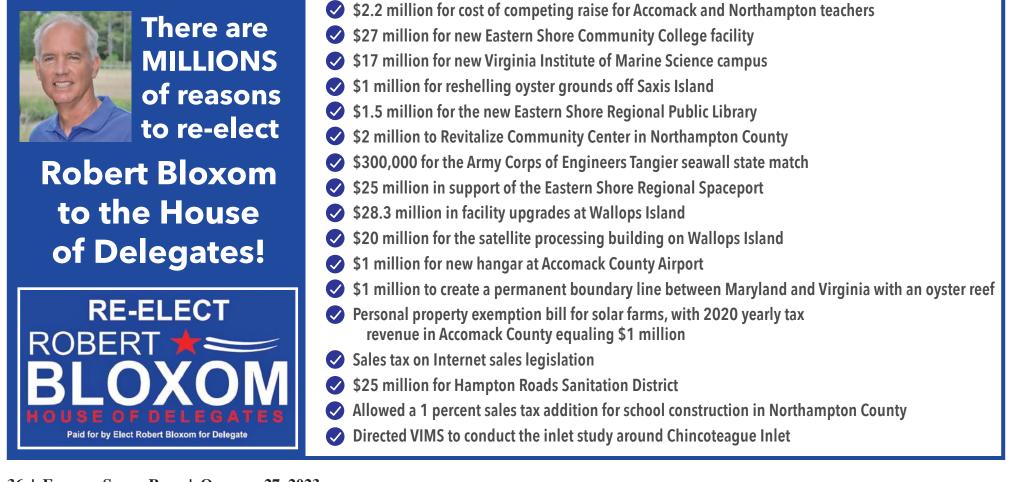

The project will include 10 duplexes totaling 20 units -14 to rent and six to own. The duplexes to own will be fee simple, meaning the buyers can do whatever they want with their property as long as they comply with any applicable easements or zoning. This will enable two families to each own half of a duplex. However, if a family can afford an entire duplex, Wise is willing to sell one as a whole.

She noted this would be a good option for a multigenerational and multiple-income family. Alternatively, a family who owns an entire duplex could use it to build wealth by living in one half and renting out the other.

Of the first six duplexes to be built, two duplexes will be on the east side of U.S. Route 13, one facing Occohannock Neck Road and one facing Row Lane. The other four will be on the west side of the highway facing Ruth Wise Road.

South of Ruth Wise Road will be Legacy

Housing

Plaza, a 12-unit apartment building with commercial space on the first floor, a 15-unit apartment building, and four additional duplexes.

The original estimate of $1.6 million to build the first three duplexes has risen to $2.2 million.

Wise explained that not only are construction costs and home prices remaining high, but the Eastern Shore's geographic isolation exacerbates cost increases.

Every time a contractor from the mainland comes to the Shore, "mobilization costs" are added that projects in other areas wouldn't incur.

The 25% construction cost increases present a conundrum: Should the project be started in part, as soon as some additional funding is obtained, or should the New Road group wait to start the entire project at once in hopes that a large project will attract a more competitive pool of contractors?

Wise would like to begin construction before the end of 2023, although that seems unlikely.

Even though the project has been delayed, Wise remains positive.

The "worst-case scenario," she said, is that construction will begin in spring 2024.

HOW CAN "THE NAME YOU KNOW" FIX YEARS OF BAD AUDITS!

SAMUEL H. COOPER • CLERK OF THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF ACCOMACK FOR THE PERIOD JULY 1, 2018 THROUGH JUNE 30, 2020

COMMENTS TO MANAGEMENT

We noted the following matters involving internal control and its operation that has led or could lead to the loss of revenues, assets, or otherwise compromise the Clerk's fiscal accountability.

Reconcile Bank Accounts

Repeat: Yes (first issued 2015)

The Clerk has not reconciled his operating account in several years and did not reconcile his investment account during the audit period. As of June 30, 2020, there was a $252,603 unreconciled difference between the checking account bank balance and the corresponding ledger balance. In addition, the total of the individual investment account balances in the Clerk's automated financial system does not agree to the aggregate balance reported on the savings account bank statement.

Allowing reconciling items to go unresolved can lead to errors and irregularities going undetected and can increase the risk of loss of funds. Timely and complete reconciliations are an essential internal control. The Clerk should improve his procedures to ensure bank accounts are properly and promptly reconciled, corrections and adjustments are made timely, and individual investment accounts are accurately reflected in the automated system.

Properly Bill and Collect Court Fines and Costs Repeat: Yes (as noted below)

The Clerk does not properly bill and collect court fines and costs and has not provided sufficient training to staff responsible for criminal fine and cost assessment and collection procedures. Previous audits have reported the Clerk does not Properly Bill and Collect Court Costs (first issued in 2010), properly Assess DNA Fees (issued in 2018), Participate in the Tax Set-Off Debt Collection Program (first issued 2018), and Monitor Accounts Receivable Reports (issued in 2018). The Clerk has not taken corrective action to resolve these matters. During our audit, we noted the following:

• Cost assessment errors in 40 percent of the accounts tested. Errors included incorrect fineamounts, jurisdiction errors, fees for court appointed attorneys assessed incorrectly, lowercourt costs not assessed and psychological evaluation fees not assessed. In addition, supporting paperwork for attorney fee waivers is not retained. These errors resulted inCommonwealth revenue losses of $9,758 and defendants being overcharged $1,053.

- The Clerk has not obtained access to the Local Inmate Data System (LIDS) to determine if DNAhas already been taken from a defendant and staff have not been trained to order and assess the DNA fee appropriately.
- The Clerk has not established procedures for monitoring the 'Accounts without ReceivableReport'. Review of this report ensures the Clerk has established all appropriate accounts.
- The Clerk did not participate in the Tax Set²Off Debt Collection program during fiscal year2019, resulting in revenue losses of $10,499. One staff member is now certified to respond to Tax Set-Off matches, although 11 defaults were noted in fiscal year 2020. The Clerk shouldhave a second staff certified to respond to Tax Set-Off hits so that he can collect these funds.
- In four of 17 accounts tested, judgments were not docketed or were not docketed timely.

The Clerk should ensure his staff is properly trained on the guidelines and procedures around the billing and collection of court fines and costs and should establish a system of review to minimize the likelihood of billing errors going undetected. In order to maximize collections, the Clerk should review financial system reports to ensure receivables are properly established, ensure a second staff member completes the required training to be able to use the tax refund set?? Off process, and docket judgments in a timely manner. In all cases, the Clerk should bill and collect court fines and costs in accordance with the Code of Virginia.

Improve Financial Management

Repeat: Yes (as noted)

We noted the following procedures required by either the Code of Virginia or that represent sound accounting practices that the Clerk is not following:

 The Clerk does not consistently Review Daily Financial Reports (finding first issued 2017).System reports summarize all accounting entries made each day. Proper review of thereports is an essential internal control. A deputy clerk prepares the daily financial reports forcollections and deposits, which the Clerk occasionally reviews. However, it is clear otherreports are not reviewed since defendant accounts needing corrective action have remainedon the reports for several years and ledger imbalance 'warnings' have been flagged duringthe entire audit period. Currently a liability sub ledger does not reconcile to the generalledger with a difference of $56,263. Other than the daily deposits, the Clerk makes most of the accounting entries and does not have a trained backup. Journal entry errors havecontributed to the current issues. A secondary review by trained staff would have provided the opportunity for accounting errors to be detected and corrected timely. The Clerk should consider training additional staff to assist him with report reviews.

- The Clerk did not properly Monitor and Disburse Liabilities (issued 2011, 2016, 2017, 2018)and did not submit the required Unclaimed Property and Unclaimed Restitution reports asrequired by the Code of Virginia. On June 30, 2020, the Clerk held inactive accounts totaling$115,676 dating as far back as 1998. The Clerk should perform the required due diligenceand escheat all eligible accounts.
- The Clerk did not invest two trust accounts within 60 days as required by § 8.01-600 of theCode of Virginia. One account was invested eight months late and one account remainsuninvested after ten months. Failure to invest funds timely subjects the Clerk to personalliability for the lost interest.

The Clerk should work to ensure all procedures and duties required by his office are being completed and that proper internal controls are implemented to ensure the accuracy of financial information and compliance with statutory and accounting requirements.

Develop a Disaster Recovery Plan Repeat: Yes (first issued 2018)

The Clerk has not prepared a disaster recovery plan policy as required by § 17.1-258.3:1 of the Code of Virginia. Developing a disaster recovery plan for electronic records ensures the integrity of court records. The Clerk should prepare a disaster recovery plan in accordance with the Code of Virginia.
