Proposed: 465-unit development near Onley Food Lion

BY CLARA VAUGHN Eastern Shore Post

Accomack County is considering a housing development that would add 465 apartments, duplexes, townhouses, and second-story lofts near the Chesapeake Square shopping center in Onley. The project still has many regulatory hurdles to clear before developers can break ground — including a vote in next month's Accomack County Planning Commission meeting about whether to hold the first public hearing on the plans.

"We've heard for some time the need for housing for teachers, nurses —just various, workforce-level residents in the county," said developer Chris Carbaugh, of Berlin, Md., company Atlantic Group and Associates Inc., who is spearheading the project.

Carbaugh attended a planning commission work session Tuesday, Jan. 23, where the group learned more about the proposed plans.

The mixed-use housing project would create a new neighborhood on a 100-acre tract near Onley's Food Lion shopping center.

It would devote 20% of homes there to workforce housing, defined by Virginia Housing as residences

Food truck owners sue Parksley in federal court

BY CLARA VAUGHN Eastern Shore Post

The owners of a Parksley food truck have filed a federal lawsuit against the town of Parksley and one member of its town council, alleging the town's decision to shut down the business was unconstitutional and retaliatory.

Clemene Bastien and Theslet Benoir, who own Eben-Ezer Haitian Food Truck on Bennett Street, filed a lawsuit in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, in Norfolk, on Tuesday, Jan. 23.

They are pursuing the case with Dylan Moore and Justin Pearson of the Institute

White rips new School Board's 'dissension'

BY TED SHOCKLEY

Eastern Shore Post

Accomack School Board member Malcolm White criticized other school board members during the Tuesday, Jan. 16, meeting, saying the possibility existed that his colleagues were holding "illegal" sessions — without providing evidence — and saying dissension among the group will inhibit progress.

Immediately afterward, School Board Chairwoman Janet Martin -Turner had to rap her gavel to quiet the outburst from White, who had interrupted Vice Chairman Edward Taylor.

"You're out of order," Martin-Turner said to White.

"I am not," White shot back.

"You're out of order," Martin-Turner repeated.

It was a testy exchange during the second meeting for the nine-member board after it added three new members. But it wasn't the only unusual comment.

School board member Lisa Johnson broached the topic of bullying, saying it is inappropriate among students, administration, or teachers.

She subsequently warned everyone within earshot of trying to bully her.

"I would discourage anyone from attempting to bully me or intimidating me. It won't be tolerated," she said, without saying whether such an incident had happened.

The school board also distributed a list of possibilities for changing its meetings, including making Superintendent Rhonda Hall sit with staff in the audience, instead of her current seat among the elected school board members.

Other possible changes include video recording each meeting, arranging the dais so school board members can see each other, making meeting start times later, and having students on the board as non-voting members.

But it was White's diatribe about the possibility of secret meetings that overshadowed the board's meeting.

White, normally reticent, also cast doubt on whether the school board could conduct any business because of friction among members.

"It's going to be hard to make any decision because there's a lot of disssension," White said.

"We've got nine members here and we're supposed to come together and make one decision," he continued, adding, "When one or two people make decisions, that is not considered a board."

White then pivoted to the possibility of illegal meetings, being more direct about his threat of a punishment than he was clear about whether illegal meetings were actually being held.

"If you get caught, you will be reported, and I'm not putting up with it."

No other school board members mentioned the possibility of illegal meetings.

Multiple drive-by shootings plague northern Accomack

Four drive-by shootings were reported in Accomack County last weekend. There were no injuries and no arrests.

According to Sheriff W. Todd Wessells, between Jan. 19 and Jan. 23, there were multiple shootings into occupied dwellings.

The shootings were believed to be from a vehicle, he said.

On Jan. 19, at 11 p.m., the Accomack County Sheriff's Office received a report that an occupied residence had been shot at in the 32000 block of Hilltop Drive in the Wattsville area.

Upon deputies' arrival it was discovered that an occupied dwelling had received multiple bullet holes, Wessells said.

On Jan. 20, at 9:44 a.m., the sheriff's office received a report that a resident observed bullet holes in a home located in the 7300 block of Hillcrest Drive in the Wattsville area.

Upon deputies' arrival they observed the residence to have multiple bullet holes.

Deputies determined the dwelling was occupied at the time of the shooting and was believed to have been shot at during the incident that occurred the previous night, Wessells said.

On Jan. 23, at 1:11 a.m., the sheriff's office received reports of shots fired on Welbourne Lane in the New Church area.

Upon deputies' arrival they found a home in the 4300 block of Welbourne Lane with bullet holes.

Deputies determined the dwelling was occupied at the time of the shooting.

On the same night at 2:44 a.m., the sheriff's office received a report of shots fired in the 20000 block of Bayside Road in the Onancock area.

Upon deputies' arrival they observed the residence to have multiple bullet holes and that the residence was occupied at the time of the shooting.

No injuries were reported at any of the above-mentioned shooting locations.

An investigation into these incidents is continuing and anyone with information on these or any other incidents is asked to contact the Accomack County Sheriff's Office at 757-787-1131 or 757-824-5666 or tips may be submitted at accomackcountysheriffsoffice.org

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION

Parksley food truck issue could have been avoided

Our governments should help the public achieve its entrepreneurial dreams. Governments should find solutions instead of only finding problems. They should be enablers and not disablers. They should partner and collaborate with residents, business owners, and taxpayers, for the good of them all.

No matter what happens with the federal lawsuit filed against the town of Parksley and Councilman Henry Nicholson by the owners of the Haitian food truck, it is apparent that the town was far from an enthusiastic partner or problem-solver in a wholly acceptable, routine, and legal business venture.

When it comes to the Haitian food truck, the town and Nicholson seem to have been the opposite of what good government should be. In doing so, they reflected negatively on Accomack County, the Eastern Shore, and especially the town of Parksley.

The Haitian food truck has sued the town and Councilman Henry Nicholson in federal court, alleging heavy-handed tactics, an unconstitutional closure, and retaliatory measures. The town will answer the allegations in a court filing in the coming weeks. We look forward to reading the town's defense and reporting on it.

Even if a court finds no wrongdoing by the town or Nicholson, this issue should have never escalated to a federal lawsuit. Food trucks and trailers of every stripe thrive in Cape Charles, on Chincoteague Island, in Exmore, in Cheriton, and in other Eastern Shore areas. The effort and money used to defend this lawsuit would have been better spent updating the town's commercial zoning in a way that accommodates food trucks.

Parksley's town attorney said because food trucks are not explicitly allowed in the zoning, the Haitian food trailer is illegal. But the ordinance doesn't explicitly allow a fire house, a farmers market, or an exercise studio, either.

Parksley is a great town with first-class businesses, amenities, and residents. Everyone who lives in the town should ask Parksley elected officials how this federal lawsuit could have been avoided.

Wanted more coverage of King Day event

To the editor: I was reading the Friday, Jan. 19, edition of the Eastern Shore Post and was happy to see that the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Service in Accomack County was included.

However, there could have been some more information regarding the service.

As a young Black man in the community, I feel as if we should be more involved with our history and the events going on in the community.

This also could have included more information that touched on the topics at the service and what the members discussed.

I would have been interested to know about events like this in advance as well as knowing if there would be any more in the future.

Selection of judge should not be 'political football'

To the editor: It is a shame that the circuit judge position has become such a political football.

Anyone who has followed the career of former state Sen. Lynwood Lewis in the Virginia General Assembly might have criticized him for being too middle-of-theroad, but he has, in my view, done nothing but work with others in a productive way in Richmond since he first held office, with his Eastern Shore constituents as his first priority.

I was not a fan of Lewis' Realtor bill, but I dare say if you checked the war chests of every member of the General Assembly, you might find similar donations attributed to them. I doubt their constituents are criticizing their "shortcomings."

I could easily be wrong, but I think that members of the Eastern Shore Bar Association who voted for Gordon Vincent, a longtime district judge, had figured he would automatically move up to the circuit judge position.

Lewis disrupted that thinking

Focusing on the 'great divide that exists in Virginia' weeks, when there is really no time for foolishness as

The House of Representatives committees have met and the subcommittees have been assigned by the chairman.

I have been fairly treated by the majority party, having been assigned seven subcommittee appointments. This brings my workload to 11 committees.

The subcommittees are where the real work on a bill occurs. The bills are being referred by the speaker to the committee, where the chairman in turn assigns the bill to the subcommittee.

Hopefully, the subcommittee has expertise in the subject area. I mention this because there are 39 new members in the 100-member chamber.

This is a new level of challenge, as some members are still in "campaign mode," when they feel the legislation from the opposing party must die.

This usually wears off after a few

Delegate Rob Bloxom

Some may look at this divide as either being Republican or Democrat. However, I look at it through a geographical and demographic lens. This became quite clear to me when the introduction of the Agriculture Committee recently took place.

The closest rural Democrat is Del. Dan Helmer. His district includes a few wineries and horse farms but has no large production in agriculture, as it is near Fairfax. Most residents are young and probably moved to Virginia fewer than 10 years ago. They are ethnically diverse and their parents or perhaps they might have endured some form of discrimination.

They all made comments about clean water, streams, trees, and parks and believe that government is part of the solution, as most of these work for either nonprofit organizations or government agencies.

Then when you look at the Republican mix of the committee, we have more years of experience than any other committee in the General Assembly.

We are from areas that have lost tobacco, furniture manufacturing, textile industries, coal, and major vegetable production, and we feel that the government is the problem.

As diverse as the two parties are and because there are many bills that we will never agree upon, meeting vour fellow committee members is crucial.

Educating, building, and maintaining relationships are all important objectives that benefit the whole legislative body and benefit our commonwealth as a whole.

In the next few weeks I will address the legislation that I will patron.

I am happy to meet with the many constituents coming from the Eastern Shore and Hampton Roads and listen to their specific interests. Please feel free to contact me while I am in Richmond at 804-698-1000 or at my District Office in Mappsville at 757-824-3456.

If you are coming to Richmond, please visit me at my office in the new General Assembly Building. I am on the 7th Floor in Room 711.

due to the gerrymandering that was beyond his control, and thus his future choices were altered.

Being a district judge is not a prerequisite. Retiring Judge W. Revell Lewis III entered at the circuit level as did former Judge Glen Tyler and many others on the Shore before them.

So we have a contest and it is a shame there are so many bad feelings.

We are such a small area — we do not need to tarnish the reputations of others.

Let the cards fall where they may without a lot of animosity. Let the best man win, as they say. Perhaps in the future this will be a contest between two women lawyers.

Pauline Small

Loving wife, mother, and grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Isdell Small, of Onley, passed away on Wednesday, Jan. 17, 2024. She was born in Onancock on Sept. 10, 1941, a daughter to the late Norman Isdell and the late Margaret Marsh.

Pauline was the beloved co-owner and operator of Redwood Gables for 20over years alongside her husband, Joseph Decormis "J.D." Small Jr. The couple met at a sock hop after a football game at Onancock High School. They shared a dance and the rest was history. The two became one in March 1962. J.D. was drafted by the Dodgers and Pauline made sure he had a life to return to back on the Shore. They immediately went to Stockton, Md., and got married before his first at-bat.

The couple had two wonderful children, Trey and Paula. They spent summers at the local carnivals playing bingo or working in the restaurant. She volunteered for years in the Onley Fire and Rescue Women's Auxiliary.

Always kind and even-keeled, Pauline was the heart of the family. She rarely got angry and the kids can't remember a single time she ever yelled at them. Family was everything to her. She was never a showboat, always easy-going, and made sure that her husband and children knew they were loved.

Known as a hard worker, Pauline did take a little time for herself every so often. One of her favorite pastimes was going to Ocean City, Atlantic City, Dover, and Harrington to play the slots. She and her sister-in-law and motherin-law would hop in the car, turn on some Elvis, and cruise for a few hours for a little relaxation under the neon lights. When she had an afternoon off from work, she enjoyed cheering for Jeff Gordon or the Cowboys. Always an avid reader, she found contentment in the pages of a novel. Nothing brought her more pleasure than spending time with her grandkids. She will be remembered and missed for years to come.

Pauline is survived by her husband of nearly 62 years, J.D. Small; children, Paula Small, of Onley, and Trey Small (Jennifer), of Onley; grandchildren, Paul Thornton, Cole Siegle, Caylee Small, and Wyatt Chesser; great-grandchildren, Skylar Thornton and Evelynn Thornton; sister-in-law, Teresa Erdman; special niece, Joyce Henry; and several other nieces and nephews.

In addition to her parents, Pauline was predeceased by her sister, Bonnie Young; brother, Robin Marsh; and great-grandchildren, Roreigh Thornton and Joseph Thornton.

A graveside memorial and inurnment was held Tuesday, Jan. 23, 2024, at 1 p.m., in Fairview Lawn Cemetery in Onancock, with the Rev. Robert Fletcher officiating.

Flowers will be accepted or memorial contributions in Pauline's name may be made to the American Diabetes Association, 870 Greenbrier Circle, Greenbrier Tower II, Suite 404, Chesapeake, VA 23320, http://www.diabetes.org

Janet Pruitt

Mrs. Janet Lee Pruitt, 75, affectionately known as "Sis" to family and friends, passed away into the loving arms of her Lord and Savior on Thursday, Jan. 18, 2024. A lifelong resident of Tangier Island, Janet was born Jan. 8, 1949, to the late Kenneth Lawson Pruitt and Virginia "Ginny Belle" Pruitt.

Janet was the kind of person everyone knew they could call on in their time of need. Throughout her life she never wavered in her faith, her devotion to family, or her dedication and respect for her commu-adult, she began her first job at the crab picking plant, using the skills she learned then to help her husband, Larry, at his crab house for many years. She was grateful to have had the opportunity to work alongside her mom at the waterfront restaurant, having made many precious memories with her during that time.

Although Sis wore many hats over the years, her favorite of all her jobs was working as a tour guide for the island ferry boats — the Chesapeake Breeze and the Steven Thomas. She thought the world of the captains and their crews and cherished the friendships made.

For Janet, there was no greater love than that she had for her family, especially Larry. Their true love and respect for one another was evident, as you would rarely see one without the other, and even then, all they'd talk about was each other. She loved spending time with her family and looked forward to her nieces' get-togethers, and she was grateful for her friends and treasured each and every one of them. Sis loved life and enjoyed every moment to the fullest, leaving lasting memories full of good times, shared laughs, and full hearts.

She is survived by her husband and best friend, Larry Pruitt; sister, Barbara Gail "Barb" McCready; special nieces, Ginna Giles and Jackie Thomas; great-nephews, Brandon Thomas, Zachary Creedle, Christian Creedle, Kevin Thomas, and Tyler Giles; great-great-nephews, Wyatt, Liam, Layton, and Nash Thomas; sister-in-law, Charlotte Parks; special cousin and best friend, Mary Ellen Belote; and several cousins and friends. In addition to her parents, Sis was predeceased by her parents-in-law, Smith and Viola Pruitt and brother-in-law, Jackie Burton "Burt" McCready.

A service to celebrate Janet's life was held at the Swain Memorial United Methodist Church on Thursday, Jan. 25, at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Charles W. Parks III and Elder Duane Crockett officiating.

Contributions in Janet's memory may be made to Swain Memorial UMC, P.O. Box 199, Tangier, VA, 23440 or Tangier Volunteer Fire Department, P.O. Box 239, Tangier, VA 23440.

years. Later she worked at the former Northampton-Accomack Memorial Hospital and at nursing homes in both Accomack and Northampton counties.

Lois preferred to stay busy, even when off the clock, and loved going fishing, cooking, gardening, and quilting. Over the years she picked many a bucket of blueberries at the Hacksneck Blueberry Farm and tugged thousands of sweet potatoes, which she looked forward to sharing with friends and neighbors.

She was a longtime member of the Community Church of God in Birdsnest, never wavering in her love for her Lord and Savior. Those who were fortunate enough to have known Lois' kind and generous heart are grateful for the memories (and sweet potatoes) shared.

In addition to her parents, Lois was predeceased by her husband, Edgar W. "Snooks" Webb; and brothers, Earl, Grover, Willie, and Paul Stevens.

She leaves to cherish her memory her sons, Frankie Lee Bennett, of Hacksneck, and Archie Mears Bennett Jr. and his wife Joan, of Brown Summit, N.C.; grandchildren, Michelle Bozovich, Rebekah McConnell, and Lisa Hagan; great-grandchildren, Laura McFayden, Rebekah K. Bozovich, Caroline Bozovich, Ike Mango, David Hagan, and April Hagan; and great-great- grandson, Jace Hagan.

Lois' family will be forever thankful for the care and compassion she received from her longtime caregiver, Nancy Killmon; as well as for the support of friends and neighbors, Jason and Heather Callaway, and the nurses at Riverside Shore Hospice.

Funeral services were conducted from the chapel of the Williams-Onancock Funeral Home on Thursday, Jan. 25, at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Roland "Tommy" Kellam officiating. Interment was held in the Johnson's United Methodist Church Cemetery in Machipongo.

Community rallies behind cheerleaders

SUBMITTED PHOTO

Saturday, Jan. 20 was a wonderfully positive experience for the Nandua Middle School Braves and the Chincoteague Middle School Ponies. After multiple failed attempts to secure a date and judges for an official cheerleading tournament, the annual event was canceled; however, each team was given the opportunity to showcase. Nandua opened its doors for friends and family of both teams to view the routines these young cheerleaders had worked so hard to create and perform. The entire gym cheered for everyone and positive sportsmanship was shared by all. Guest Virginia High School League judges offered feedback to each coach without determining a winner so both teams could see how they would have scored on the rubrics in a real competition. Three minutes of undivided attention for each team meant the world to these 27 middle school athletes. Pictured in the top row are Saniya Broughtin, Cheyenne Britton, Aja Custis, Ava Williams, Journey Eder, Faith Stadler, Captain Chloe Bacchi, Luciana Vasiliou, Grace Dietch, Jahzara Austin, Taliyah Grimes, Captain Jordyn Daley, Captain Emma Tyler, and Camden Scott. The Broadwater Lady Vikings basketball team hosted Nandua on Thursday, Jan. 18, and fell to the Warriors 58-42.

The Warriors ran away in the first quarter on the homestanding Vikings 17-4. The momentum continued for the Lady Warriors in the second quarter as they outscored Broadwater 14-6.

The Lady Vikings' offense picked up in the third quarter — they scored 18 points to the Warriors' 12. But Nandua's sizable lead from the first half was never seriously threatened. The game ended with the Lady Warriors outscoring the Lady Vikings 15-14 in the fourth quarter.

The Nandua Lady Warriors were led by Reghan Hintz with 35 points. The standout player for the Lady Vikings was Leah Smith with 24 points, 10 rebounds, three steals, two blocks, and one assist.

Eastern Shore Post

When Nandua High School's boys basketball team took a 36-31 halftime lead at Northampton on Tuesday night, Yellow Jackets coach Wayne Bell had some words for his players in the locker room.

The Jackets then outscored Nandua 30-15 in the third quarter and held on for a 74-61 victory.

Afterward, someone asked senior guard Quay Washington, "Did Coach Bell chew out the team at halftime?"

Washington just smiled and said, "No, he was just telling us about ourselves."

The "telling about" apparently worked.

"We just talked about pressuring the ball more for some turnovers to get easy baskets," said Bell. "I'm glad they stepped it up and made it happen, because Nandua had the momentum and we wanted to grab it back."

Northampton improved to 10-4 overall and 2-0 in the Eastern Shore District. With a Wednesday night loss to Pocomoke, Nandua now stands at 6-7 overall and 0-1 in the district.

Northampton traveled to Arcadia (9-6, 1-0) Thursday in a battle for first place in the league, The game finished after deadline.

On Tuesday, in a pregame ceremony, Yellow Jacket senior guard Ronyell Coston was honored for scoring his 1,000th career point in a recent game at Chincoteague. He then poured in 23 points to lead his team over Nandua. Junior guard Jaylen Anderson added 21 points and six assists, and Washington added 12 points, six assists, and five steals.

Senior forward Ny'Zir Dix led Nandua with 25 points, and senior guard Makai Dorn added 9. Nandua coach Trelle Warner also praised junior Cody Ragone for solid all-around play off the bench.

Warner agreed that the third quarter "definitely determined the outcome of the game. We have to be more disciplined when facing a scrappy team. Northampton applied a lot of pressure that creates turnovers. This was a tough loss but a learning experience."

Northampton's Washington said his team "just started clicking on defense" in the third quarter. "We capitalized on some stops and it just turned around. That's what we needed."

easy 60-23 win. Nandua led 18-0 before Northampton scored its first basket with about a minute left in the first quarter.

The Warriors led 41-6 at the half, and coach Lynn Williams played his subs liberally in the second half as Nandua coasted.

Nandua, which improved to 7-4 overall and 1-0 in the district, also got seven points from junior Keira Wheatley. The Warriors hosted Chincoteague (5-4, 2-0) on Thursday in a game that ended after deadline.

Northampton, led by eight points each from junior Ortavia Rogers and sophomore Jade Collins, fell to 0-10 and 0-2. The Jackets visited Arcadia on Thursday night. Williams said his players still have much to learn, even in such a one-sided game.

"We try to work on our zone defense in situations like that," he said. "We have a lot of underclass players, and I'm just trying to get them acclimated — where they're supposed to be, what they're supposed to do, boxing out, rebounding, those kinds of things."

Before Thursday's game against Chincoteague and Friday's at Pocomoke, Hintz had 930 career points. If she can maintain her scoring average of 27.1 points per game, she could score her 1,000th career point at home against Arcadia on Monday, Jan. 29.

households earning 60% to 120% of the median income, which was $52,694 according to the 2022 U.S. Census, said Accomack's Deputy County Administrator of Planning and Community Development Lee Pambid.

The conceptual plans also include trails, a playground, a fitness center, businesses, and other amenities in a walkable community.

"There's a sense of place that they're trying to develop here," Pambid said in his presentation to the planning commission.

If approved, the project would be built in phases, with an initial phase adding 225 housing units, he said.

However, that would not be for some time, given the project requires rezoning the land and the developer securing a conditional-use permit from Accomack County, among other regulatory steps.

The planning commissioners' questions at Tuesday's meeting centered on the scale of the project and how an influx of new residents could impact local schools, police departments, emergency responders, and other public services.

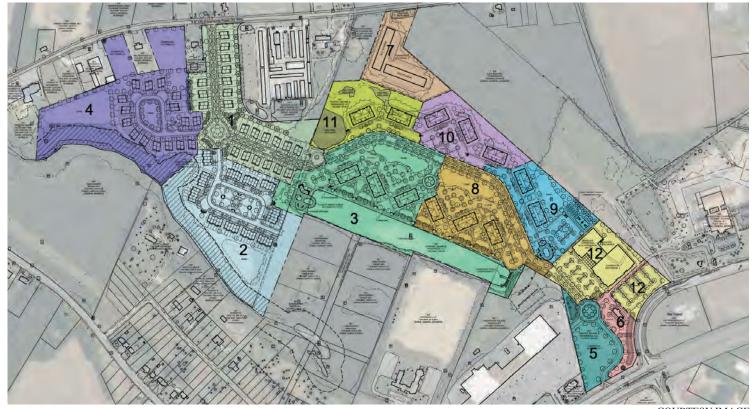

"Would you need another firehouse here, for example?" asked Planning Commissioner John Sparkman, who noted new homes could create a need for new schools, law enforcement officers, or other services that could impact taxpayers.

"This is going to be phased over time, so the impact ... of 465 units is not going to be felt at one time," Pambid said. He added the timeline for the project would be determined in the future.

County staff and the developer have spoken with school leaders and found that none of Accomack's public schools is at its capacity, he said.

A traffic study on the plans will wrap soon and the Virginia Department of Transportation has found "no significant impact" so far, Carbaugh said. The developer would be charged with completing any road improvements the state requires.

The development would connect to the Hampton Roads Sanitation District's new regional sewer system and to water service from Onancock, "and the capacity is there," Pambid said.

To move forward, the developer requires rezoning the 100-acre site from Agricultural and General Business to Commercial and Business Development district — a move that "fits in the with the future land-use recommendations in the (Accomack County) Comp Plan," Pambid said.

Carbaugh's group is also seeking four exemptions to the county's zoning rules in the conditional-use permit for the project.

One is an exception to the 40-acre maximum size for a village development project. The proposed project is more than double that at 100 acres.

Smaller exceptions include waiving the county requirement to provide two access points for developments that generate 250 trips daily.

The developers would provide one access point on Route 13 in the project's first phase, with plans to later add access points on Fairgrounds Road, at Chesapeake Square shopping center, and at A&N Electric Cooperative, Pambid said.

The developer is seeking an exception to the 200-foot setback required from property lines for parcels zoned agricultural. The waiver request notes that for this project, these parcels are woodlands and not used for agriculture.

The final waiver request is to alter the county's parking requirement for shopping centers, from 1 parking space per 200 square feet of retail floorspace, to 1 parking space for every 300 square feet of shopping space.

The conceptual plans for the project include 11 rows of five townhouses, for 55 total townhouses; 13 apartment buildings, each with 24 units, for 312 apartments; 76 duplex units; and 22 loft apartments above businesses.

The buildings would be allowed a maximum height of 35 feet, or 45 feet with additional setbacks, according to Accomack County's zoning rules.

While the apartments would be rentals, the developer could sell some housing units, Carbaugh said.

His group works with Virginia Housing, an organization helping Virginians attain quality, affordable homes, on other housing developments on Virginia's Eastern Shore.

"Hearing Virginia Housing and their interest in seeing projects like this come to the Eastern Shore is why we think it is important," he said, referencing the 20% workforce housing component of the proposed development.

Carbaugh sought to build what would have been Accomack County's first planned unit development over a decade ago near NASA Wallops Flight Facility, but the county's board of supervisors denied a rezoning application for part of the property and a conditional use permit for a sewage treatment facility there.

The Accomack County Planning Commission is slated to vote on whether to send the plans to a public hearing during its next meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Board Chambers of the County Administration Building, 23296 Courthouse Ave., Accomac.

attorney fees in the lawsuit.

"We don't have a dollar value to put on the damages right now ... (because) it is growing each day" that the food truck is closed, Moore said.

The lawsuit claims Parksley Town Council member Henry Nicholson trespassed on the food truck owners' private property and cut the water line to their mobile food unit.

Parksley Mayor Frank Russell said he has "absolutely no comment" on the lawsuit, which he had not yet received Tuesday afternoon.

Nicholson, who is being sued individually and in his official capacity as a town councilman, also declined comment.

"I'd be a fool to comment on anything anymore anyway because my words get twisted around," he said, adding, "People turn it around and try to make it racist."

The lawsuit also claims Parksley retaliated against Bastien and Benoir for seeking legal advice after they received a letter from Attorney André Wiggins, on behalf of Parksley, requesting their food truck "cease operation immediately."

That letter, dated Nov. 1, said Parksley's Town Zoning Ordinance does not name food trucks in uses allowed by right in the town's commercial district.

It stated individuals violating the ordinance can face fines of up to $250 and imprisonment in the county jail for up to 30 days for each day they break the town code.

Bastien and Benoir opened the truck last summer after paying 30 to Parksley for a one-year business license on May 14, 2023.

It was the first food truck to arrive in town, leading the town council to grapple with how to manage a new type of business.

On Oct. 9, the council voted to pass an ordinance limiting mobile food vendors to selling their fare in town only during special events such as festivals that the town council had approved or sponsored, though the council was divided on the new rule.

The town council repealed that law Nov. 13, but the ordinance drew attention during its short time on the books including from attorneys at the Institute for Justice.

The suit claims Parksley's town government unconstitutionally retaliated against the business owners, and that Nicholson trespassed on their private property. It sues the defendants under the First, Fourth, and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, the Civil Rights Act of 1871, and Virginia tort law, among others.

The town and Nicholson will be served with the legal notice by the end of the week, Moore said, and they will have 21 days to respond, though they may request an extension.

Wiggins did not return the Post's request for comment by press time.

"I'd like this lawsuit to be an example to the city," Bastien said in a translated interview with the Institute for Justice.

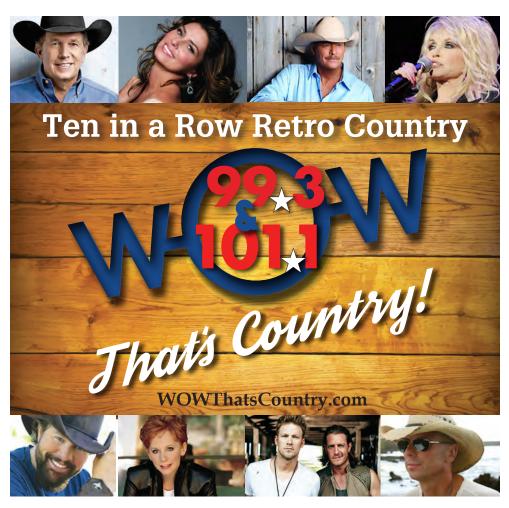

"When you're the mayor, you're the mayor of all people, and you serve all people," she said.

Supervisors discuss tax-relief options

BY STEFANIE JACKSON

Eastern Shore Post

Northampton County supervisors are considering finding more ways to help elderly residents keep their real estate taxes paid and stay in their homes.

"I'd hate to see an old man or old lady lose their home that they built from the beginning and their income has ... gotten so low that they may not be able to take care of their taxes," said Vice Chair Oliver Bennett on Tuesday, Jan. 23.

Finance Director John Chandler noted that Northampton County already has some tax relief programs in place.

Elderly and disabled residents whose annual household income does not exceed $50,000 may qualify for tax relief.

Northampton County also offers real estate and personal property tax relief for disabled veterans or their surviving spouses.

"If they don't qualify for the tax reductions that we already have in place, the treasurer will work out payment plans for people," said County Administrator Charlie Kolakowski.

Bennett was concerned that the payment plan included penalties and interest that "constantly shoots up" and prevents property owners from being able to pay off their tax bills.

Chandler said that Virginia Code regulates the penalties and interest, which are a one-time penalty of 10% of the taxes owed, plus 10% annual interest on any remaining balance.

"If you're late one day, or two years late, it's 10% — that's it," John Chandler said of the penalty.

Kolakowski also confirmed that at least two years must pass before property may be sold to collect unpaid real estate taxes.

"I knew we had a plan where, if you can't pay your taxes ... you don't make enough money, you don't have enough income, you don't have a lot of cash in the bank, then we basically will abate your taxes to a lower level," but a real estate tax payment program is "news to me," said Supervisor John Coker.

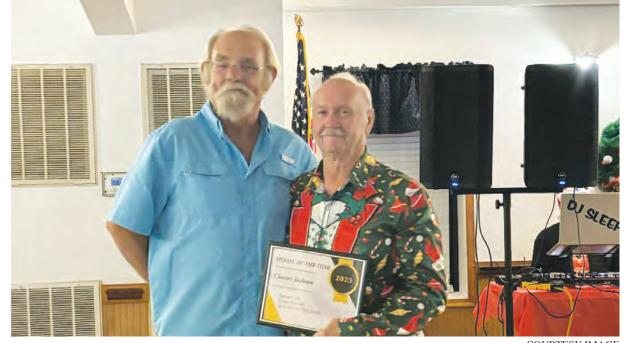

Kolakowski clarified that Northampton County does not offer payment plans to individual taxpayers but is "eligible" to offer them.

"So we need to look a little deeper," Bennett said.

Coker agreed, "We need to work on that."

Chair Betsy Mapp noted that payment plans are provided at the discretion of the county treasurer, and anyone seeking to set up a payment plan should contact the treasurer before taxes are due Dec. 5.

Little River Band, Firefall headline ChamberFest '24

BY TED SHOCKLEY

Eastern Shore Post

The Little River Band and Firefall, two popular bands from the 1970s and 1980s, will perform on Saturday, May 18, in Cape Charles, at the Eastern Shore of Virginia Chamber of Commerce's ChamberFest, a marketing and networking event in its third year.

ChamberFest will take place in "the old rail yard," a large waterfront property between Cape Charles' business district and the Shanty restaurant, from 3 to 8 p.m.

The announcement was made by Robert Sabbatini, the executive director of the chamber of commerce and the Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission, on Friday, Jan. 19, live on WESR 103.3FM.

The chamber's website stated tickets are $75 each plus a $3 surcharge. Tickets go on sale Monday, Feb. 5, Sabbatini said.

Sabbatini said the location and the season have changed from the first two ChamberFest events, which were held near Onancock. The bands included Molly Hatchett, Sawyer Brown, and Jefferson Starship during the first two years, as well as local musical groups.

"We've had some big acts here," said Sabbatini.

Sabbatini said the new location in Cape Charles provides more space, is closer to the Hampton Roads area, and will feature "the beautiful backdrop of the Chesapeake Bay."

"We think it's just going to be the perfect location," he said.

Moving ChamberFest from the fall to the spring also avoids hurricane season.

"The committee thinks long and hard about hurricane season," said Sabbatini. "We don't want to run into any issues like that."

In Cheriton, a plan for 'glamping domes'

BY STEFANIE JACKSON

Eastern Shore Post

One Northampton resident has a creative idea for providing accommodations for visitors without opening more short-term vacation rental houses, which some say negatively impact the county's available stock of affordable and workforce housing.

Jason Hahn, of Bayview Circle, near Cheriton, wants to build up to five domes or pods on his approximately five-acre property for "glamping," a term that is a portmanteau of the words "glamorous" and "camping."

"Glamping is for people like me that would never camp in their life but want a more luxurious stay when they're enjoying the outdoors," he said at the Tuesday, Jan. 9, Northampton Board of Supervisors meeting.

It's a way for guests to get close to nature without sleeping in a tent on the ground and giving up comforts such as electricity or indoor plumbing.

Hahn's glamping domes each would be 10 feet high and set on platforms about one foot off the ground.

Each dome would feature a bay window and a sun roof and be large enough to accommodate a king-size bed and a kitchenette with a coffee maker and mini fridge, Hahn said.

The domes would be used to host visiting friends, family, and other guests.

"Our goal with this is to work to bring Cheriton to kind of where Cape Charles is. When people visit this area, they always go to Cape Charles, which is great. It's an amazing town," Hahn said.

"But Cheriton is this lost, little, cute town with these small businesses, and it used to be something that now it is not," he said.

The project would be "a Cheriton thing," and visitors would be directed to businesses in town to eat, shop for antiques, or get a haircut, Hahn said.

He wants to avoid the pitfalls of standard short-term rental homes and has decided not to permit motor vehicles, loud music, or smoking around the domes.

Hahn also plans to install a 6-foot fence to help hide the domes from view.

"This is a place for people to come and enjoy and relax and be peaceful," he said.

Hahn has received letters of support from his neighbors, Cheriton business owners, and a local church.

Realizing his goal will take close cooperation between Hahn and county staff and the approval of the board of supervisors.

Northampton's planning and zoning director, Susan McGhee, told supervisors at their Tuesday, Jan. 23, meeting that Hahn could apply for a major special-use permit for his project, but only if the county's zoning ordinance was changed.

Hahn's property and home is in a town edge zoning district, which Supervisor John Coker called a "special place" where both residential and certain commercial uses, such as campgrounds, may be permitted.

However, Northampton's zoning ordinance currently does not allow a campground and a single-family dwelling on the same parcel.

McGhee explained to supervisors that a zoning text amendment could solve the problem.

She suggested amending the definition of a campground to include not only "parking, playgrounds, offices, recreational ponds, and retail uses such as snack bars or general stores for use by campground patrons" but also a "single-family residence owned by the facility."

By modifying only the definition of a campground but not the commercial use chart, campgrounds with single-family residences would be allowed by major special-use permit in not only a town edge district but also agricultural-rural business districts, villages, and waterfront villages.

Coker was amenable to the idea of allowing campgrounds with single-family residences in town edge districts but he didn't want them "everywhere," especially in an A-RB district.

McGhee said allowing the combination of a campground and a single-family dwelling only in a town edge district would require modifying the commercial use chart in Northampton's zoning ordinance.

Hahn said he didn't want to "open a can of worms," and he would be willing to change his proposal if necessary.

Northampton supervisors unanimously voted to adopt a resolution referring the matter to the county planning commission and initiating the process of amending the zoning text.

Fournier to discuss most recent book

On Tuesday, Feb. 20, from 6 to 7 p.m. Arthur Fournier will discuss his recent book, "Hope Makes Us Live! Hope Makes Us Die!" at the Eastern Shore Regional Library in Parksley.

Fournier will be discussing his experiences bringing much needed medical care to Haiti and the unique culture and heritage that he has found in the Caribbean nation.

In his most recent publication, Fournier explores the rich and tumultuous culture of Haiti. In the 18th century, Haiti was the richest colony in the New World. This aristocracy, however, dwindled as years went by and the enslaved people were finally able to exact their freedom. In the present day, lives of the Haitian peasants have become harder and harder.

Schools detail plan for Accomac Primary

BY TED SHOCKLEY

Eastern Shore Post

The former Accomack Primary School, the stately, columned, vacant building set to be renovated into a school administration complex, will not have a parking lot in its front yard.

That's according to Bobby Bennett, Accomack County Public Schools' director of operations and management, who told the school board on Tuesday, Jan. 16, that the area in front of the building will be left alone.

Last June the school board voted to pursue restoring and remodeling the 1932 structure, which provides a beloved northern bookend to Courthouse Avenue.

Bennett said the goal is to "preserve the character of the existing building." Architects will meet with school officials in February to discuss the project and should have a floor plan designed by March.

Tommy Hines and Christopher Newman, members of the Accomac Town Council, addressed the school board to ask that there not be a parking lot in front of the school.

Hines and Newman also asked for "transparency" from the school board about the renovation project.

"We just haven't heard too much going on," said Hines.

Newman asked if there could be more of a discussion with school board members on important topics of the day.

"I just urge you to think about this and see if you can't open up this meeting a bit more so we can communicate back and forth," Newman said.

The Accomack County School Board recently recognized three teachers, from left, Julie Harrower, Michelle Hatcher, and Allison Tyler, who have passed rigorous assessments and instructional best practices assignments to earn the designation of National Board Certification. National Board Certification is the most respected professional certification available in education and provides numerous benefits to teachers, students, and schools. It was designed to develop, retain, and recognize accomplished teachers and to generate ongoing improvement in schools nationwide.

Timothy Hite, who said he was recently hired to be the coach, asked the board for its "full support" to transition the team from 11-man to eight-man football.

"This is my opinion of what would be best for our student-athletes," Hite said.

He said he hoped to transition back to 11-man football after rebuilding the program, possibly after two years.

Literacy Council receives Imagination Library grant

The Eastern Shore Literacy Council announces a $5,000 grant award from The National Home Library Foundation to support the local Dolly Parton Imagination Library book gifting initiative. This grant award will support the distribution of books each month to registered age-eligible children. More than 1,100 children have received 15,000 books since the Fall of 2021, when the Eastern Shore Literacy Council joined with the Dollywood Foundation to bring Dolly Parton's Imagination Library to children in Accomack and Northampton counties.

Dolly started the Imagination Library in 1995 for children in her home county. Today her program reaches five countries and distributes more than 2 million books each month through community partners in the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, and Ireland.

Find out more about the Dolly Parton Imagination Library or register a child at www.imaginationlibrary.com or at the Eastern Shore Literacy Council at www.shoreliteracy.org or by calling 757-789-1761.
