Michael Rosato works Saturday, June 29, to install a large mural on Main Street, Chincoteague Island.

Downtown Chincoteague mural taking shape

Renowned mural artist Michael Rosato creates stories with his paint brushes. His latest project, currently underway on Chincoteague Island, captures a moment of time in the island's history more than a century ago, when it was a bustling fishing village.

"When beginning work on a mural, I wear many hats," he said. I want to learn about a community, its history, its people. It helps me with storytelling."

Commissioned by the Historic Main Street Merchants Association, the idea for the mural was hatched after the Showard Brothers hardware store was demolished, exposing the north-facing wall of the Masonic Lodge building.

After working out the design with the group, Rosato spent months last winter painting the Northampton's fiscal year 2025 budget of more than $23.6 million will support several capital projects that county officials deem necessary.

The county budget includes about $1.8 million in capital improvements — typically large equipment purchases or construction projects.

A total of $209,000 was budgeted for capital expenses at Northampton's solid waste facility.

Supervisor Oliver Bennett asked if the cost of any heavy equipment was included.

Deputy County Administrator Janice Williams said the $209,000 was for items like "green boxes," or trash receptacles.

She said, "I don't think of a green box

Town's new wastewater system 70% complete

BY STEFANIE JACKSON
Eastern Shore Post

Exmore's sewer project is roughly 70% complete, Town Manager Robert Duer told councilmen on Monday, July 1.

Kevcor Contracting, of Norfolk, remains ahead of schedule and may finish the job before the anticipated completion date of Jan. 1, 2025.

Construction of Exmore's new sewer collection system began in August 2023.

Due to sewer project expenses, the town had a "bad month" financially in June, said Councilman Chase Sturgis.

Exmore's income, including taxes collected and profits from water, sewer, and trash services, totaled about $191,000 in June.

However, the town's expenses for the month were nearly $2 million, resulting in a net loss of almost $1.8 million.

Duer later explained that Exmore did not pay Kevcor in May but made two payments in June.

"That's why we went in the hole so deeply," he said.

The two payments to Kevcor are reflected in the budget amendments that the Exmore Town Council approved on Monday.

One payment totaled approximately $1.3 million and another was nearly $1.9 million.

The second payment was higher because it included the demolition of Exmore's old sewer treatment plant, Duer said.

Also included in the budget amendments were two payments totaling about $437,000 to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which settled the town's debt on its old sewer system.

Exmore has spent almost $4 million so far this fiscal year, more than its total income, resulting in a net loss "on paper" of more than $923,000, Duer said.

However, American Rescue Plan Act funds are forthcoming that will cover most of that $923,000, he said.

The Exmore Town Council also approved the receipt of more than $1.8 million in sewer funding, including payments from the Virginia Department of Housing and Community Development, the Department of Environmental Quality, and USDA.

The largest of the payments received was a $750,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which former U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria had secured while she was in office.

Joint zoning meeting

Exmore will hold a joint meeting of its town council and planning commission on Monday, Aug. 19, at 7 p.m., to discuss zoning.

The town council and planning commission may consider amending Exmore's zoning ordinance to accommodate businesses and housing groups that are interested in the town due to the increased availability of sewer service.

Duer encouraged the public to attend the joint meeting.

"It could change the nature of our town," he said.

Harvie plans to attend the University of Virginia in the fall.

Alona Harrison Charnock graduated as valedictorian of Tangier High School with a 3.28 GPA. VMRC repeals winter dredging prohibition

The Virginia Marine Resources Commission voted June 25 to repeal the longstanding prohibition on winter crab dredging in Virginia waters.

This decision marks a significant step towards assessing the viability of reintroducing a controlled and regulated year-round crab fishery, potentially including potting, dredging, and other gear types.

This assessment will align with current crab management efforts in Virginia to help stabilize the commercial crabbing industry throughout the year.

The repeal of the crab dredge prohibition does not open a crab dredge fishery in Virginia, state officials said.

This vote by the Commission allows VMRC staff to explore the viability of a year-round crab fishery that may serve to bolster the commercial crabbing industry during times of the year where jobs are often lost during industry closures, losing access to workers and customers. This includes understanding how a limited fishery could operate sustainably without compromising overall crab stocks.

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION

Challenges remain despite historic funding commitment

The Northampton Board of Supervisors recently made a historic commitment to public education.

Considering the traditional tension between what the Northampton School Board seeks in new local funding each year and what supervisors decide to give, the June 25 budget vote was remarkable.

The school board asked for about $2.5 million in new local funding. The board of supervisors decided to give $2.3 million. This is a windfall for the tiny school system.

(By comparison, the Accomack County Board of Supervisors, whose public school system has three times as many students as Northampton's, gave about $1.1 million in new local money to the school board.)

To provide this new funding, Northampton raised its real estate tax rate five cents per assessed $100 in valuation.

This represents a shift in philosophy, for sure. On the Eastern Shore, raising taxes for any reason — even to better fund public education — is simply not tolerated by voters. Supervisors in both counties usually dismiss out of hand the idea of raising taxes for any reason.

The robust funding commitment from the county helps offset some of the school system's unfortunate news. Northampton's associate superintendent just left after one year on the job. Its high school principal just left after two years on the job. There are 37 job vacancies on the school board's website.

The school system has been funded, but challenges remain.

GUEST COLUMN

GHOTES conference shows library's promise

BY CARA BURTON

Guest Columnist

During the last week of June, more than 70 members of the group Genealogy and History of the Eastern Shore, or GHOTES, met for a four-day educational conference in the new Eastern Shore of Virginia Heritage Center at the regional library in downtown Parksley.

The event highlights the economic impact of public libraries on local communities.

In 2018, Curt Smith and Shannon Alexander, at that time planners for the Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission, led Parksley stakeholders in downtown revitalization meetings as the town applied for a community development block grant, which was awarded the following year.

The relocation of the regional library headquarters from Accomack to Parksley spurred this small-town renewal project.

The Eastern Shore Post welcomes your letters and guest columns. Letters have no more than 350 words. Guest columns have no more than 500 words.

Letters and columns must include a phone number and a town of residence for verification.

They must not have been

Letters and guest columns may be edited.

It is preferred that letters and guest columns refer to Eastern Shore Post content or Eastern Shore of Virginia issues.

No more than one letter or column per person will be printed during a 90-day period.

The library building plan included the renovation of a blighted grocery store with an addition that resulted in a 20,000-square-foot facility, including a new large group meeting space.

Of the 70 GHOTES attendees, 53 were visitors: 19 traveled from other parts of Virginia and 34 traveled from other states, from as far away as California.

The 53 visitors to the Shore, plus their traveling companions, stayed at local hotels and short-term rentals, ate at our restaurants, bought gas, toured local museums, and shopped at our stores. Most traveling attendees stayed at hotels in Exmore.

The library is bringing a new type of economic benefit to the Shore, not just in

‘Girls on the Run’ takes different approach to athletics

Coaches of youth sports forever have been spouting cliches like, “It’s not whether you win or lose, it’s how you play the game,” and, “The important thing is that you have fun.”

If those things are true, then why must we always keep score?

Another familiar saying is, “A little competition never hurt anyone.” But are we pushing kids into too much competition?

The American Academy of Pediatrics reports that about 70% of youth drop out of organized sports by age 13, and the “professionalization of youth sports” is partly to blame.

Dropping out of sports at an early age also may be a factor in 75% of U.S. adolescents failing to meet recommendations for physical activity.

When parents and coaches put too much pressure on children to perform, the kids stop having fun, quit, and miss out on the physical and mental health benefits of athletics programs.

Girls on the Run takes a different approach. The program was reintroduced to Accomack County Public Schools this year after a hiatus during the COVID-19 pandemic.

A total of 55 girls participated from five schools: Chincoteague, Kegotank, Metompkin, and Pungoteague elementary schools and Arcadia Middle School.

The 10-week program “is designed to inspire girls of all abilities to recognize and embrace their inner strength and make meaningful connections with others,” said Assistant Principal Alicia Payne, of Pungote-ague Elementary School.

Girls on the Run programming is available to girls in grades 3 to 8 at more than 12,000 locations across North America. The program “supports girls’ physical activity, mental health, and life skills through running and community,” according to the nonprofit’s website.

For Accomack students, the program culminated in a 5K, or 3.1-mile, run at Virginia Wesleyan University in Virginia Beach.

But the girls didn’t just run the race. “They walked it, ran it, skipped it,” Payne said.

When the students began Girls on the Run, many lacked confidence in their ability to complete a 5K, but on the day of the race, “They did it. And you know what was even better? They did it with smiles on their faces,” Payne said.

“The energy from that event was just the most empowering opportunity to see for these girls,” she said.

Comments the girls shared about the program included:

“Girls on the Run gave me something to look forward to after school and gave me so many smiles and laughs.”

“I love Girls on the Run because when I’m here I feel safe.”

“What I loved was ... the practices ... learning about my spirit, and getting to know new people. I liked that I got better stamina and I really was excited about the run.”

The Girls on the Run program was provided through Title IV federal funding. School Superintendent Rhonda Hall hopes to expand the program next school year.

“We saw a nice dinner crowd on Wednesday evening,” said G.W. Hart, owner of Off the Rails restaurant in Parksley.

The Thursday conference banquet was held at Historic Onancock School and catered by Mallard’s, bringing additional revenue to neighboring Onancock’s establishments. Saxis’ restaurants also benefited from GHOTES diners, following a tour of the Saxis Museum led by M.K. “Moody” Miles.

The Eastern Shore of Virginia needed a new regional library to house the expanding book collections and more extensive technology equipment. The goals of Brooks Miles Barnes, the library system director involved in the new library planning, went beyond that. He wanted to create a facility that had space for the burgeoning archive and local history special collections of the Eastern Shore Room.

Barnes and a group of other local historians and genealogists also recognized the need for meeting rooms to accommodate heritage-focused lectures and educational programs. They wanted and now have a heritage center at the new library in Parksley.

Their vision was brought to life June 26 to 29, when the GHOTES gathered in conference. This was the first multi-day, multi-session event that the Heritage Center hosted. It did not disappoint.

Such community facility projects act as “catalysts for driving business activity,” Smith stated in March 2019 at a Parksley town meeting.

The block grant’s benefits are visible with the new store facades, street lights, and colorful flower pots. A landscaped alleyway provides access from the library to downtown stores and additional parking. The downtown grant and the new regional library did what they were designed to do: bring economic renewal to a small rural town.

The GHOTES conference proves that local heritage resources and associated tourism provide economic benefits.

Hosting such conferences in the facility, however, takes staff capacity. Chris Pote, the library system director, ensured Jazmine Collins, the local history reference specialist, was available to assist conference attendees in their research and in using equipment each of the four days.

In addition to responding to conference planners’ needs, Pote, a certified archivist, also presented a session at the conference.

The community now has this wonderful facility, but financial support is needed to fund the staff and technology for the programs and events.

Public libraries are open-access community facilities, not for-profit conference centers. Meetings held there go beyond just a meeting space by providing library services and resources. Your public library, therefore, needs public funding and financial support from the community.

As the Eastern Shore of Virginia Public Library celebrates its first year in the new regional library and heritage center, I hope the community will recognize that it is fulfilling its promise. The library is bringing a new type of economic benefit to the Shore, not just in Parksley.

We — and I mean everyone on the Shore — can make continuous economic improvements without the compromises and sacrifices that are required for some types of development that can alter or destroy our heritage.

We can continue to thrive by recognizing, honoring, and revitalizing our existing cultural heritage resources and making better use of these assets in the future.

scene on a series of panels made from polycord fabric — vinyl-coated polyester often used for tote bags or tarps.

Rosato and his wife Heather, who live near Cambridge, Md., began hanging the panels the last weekend in June.

The space once occupied by the hardware store has become the parking lot and drive-through lane of Taylor Bank, at the corner of Main and Church streets.

Work must be done when the bank is closed for safety reasons and because the upper panels must be hung using a bucket lift operating in the bank's parking lot.

Rosato expects to be completely finished installing the project by the annual Pony Swim, held July 24.

At ground level, an undersea world that's larger than life welcomes viewers to the mural, featuring vibrant blue crabs, fish, mollusks, and a terrapin living among brightly colored vegetation on the bottom of the Chincoteague Channel.

Watermen who made their living fishing, crabbing, or tonging for mollusks, like the oyster which made Chincoteague famous, are honored and depicted in the main body of the mural, with the island's downtown waterfront skyline in the background.

A ferry boat named the Chincoteague that transported visitors between the island and Franklin City is shown leaving the island close to shore, while a huge heron in the foreground silently observes it all.

Rosato refers to the way he paints as "stylized realism," which is subject to interpretation by the artist. In this style, while depictions are obvious, their features, shape, or colors might be changed somewhat to reflect the artist's intent.

Combined with the technique known as "perspective," it is also alive and dynamic, showing both depth and movement.

"As you look at my work over time, things jump out at you that you didn't see before," he said.

Rosato's previous commissions include the Smithsonian Museum of Natural History, the Government House Museum in St. Augustine, Fla., and the West Virginia Independence Hall.

Rosato also is creating a legacy of his work throughout the Delmarva Peninsula, from the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Museum in Cape Charles to a mural of the Bombay Hook National Wildlife Refuge commissioned by the town of Smyrna, Del.

The largest body of his work can be found throughout Maryland's Dorchester County, including his now iconic "Take My Hand" mural, located on the outside of the Harriet Tubman Museum and Educational Center in Cambridge.

One of his upcoming projects at Pocomoke City's Delmarva Discovery Museum will include a 90-foot long painted background diorama to an exhibit depicting daily life in a village of the local Pocomoke Indian Nation from the pre-Colonial era. The various roles women played in the tribe will feature prominently.

Jane Herbert

Mrs. Jane Herbert, of Onancock, passed away on Friday, May 17, 2024, at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital. Born on April 30, 1944, in Bronxville, N.Y., she was the daughter of the late Joseph and Doris Pittore.

Mrs. Herbert

Jane was the prevailing hostess in the family. She found great joy in cooking, fishing, entertaining, and fashion — but her foremost passion in life was being a wife to her husband, Erle Herbert Jr., and mother to her boys, Erle Herbert III and John Herbert.

Jane was raised in New York and attended a Catholic school as a young girl, and she attended college in the South. Always well-dressed and with an eye on the latest fashion trends, she became a successful buyer for Lord & Taylor. That path led her to the love of her life, Erle. After marriage, she moved to Washington, D.C., and became a buyer for Garfinckel's.

Fifty-five years ago, Jane and Erle moved to the Eastern Shore of Virginia and restored a house together. They spent many happy years together turning that house into a home.

Over the years, Jane was active in the community. She was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, where she was a longtime member of the Ladies Auxiliary. During their one-year residence in Palm Beach, Fla., she was a member of the Palm Beach Ladies Club. She was generous with her time and even more so with her love.

A favorite pastime of the Herberts was fishing in various parts of the U.S., Mexico, and South America, and she enjoyed a good reputation as a member of the 20-lb. Light Tackle Fishing Club. It didn't matter if it was deep sea or freshwater, the couple caught a lot of fish. On the next fishing trip, her family may feel her absence but will cherish every memory they made together on the water.

Jane is survived by her husband of almost 60 years, Erle H. Herbert Jr., of Onancock; children, Erle F. Herbert III, of Las Vegas, Nev., and John Laurence Herbert, of Richmond, Maine; and several extended family members and friends.

She was predeceased by her parents, Joseph and Doris Pittore, and sister, Gail Pittore.

A memorial mass will be held at St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Church in Onley, on Saturday, Aug. 17, at 10 a.m., with Father Michael Imperial officiating.

Memory tributes may be shared with the family at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

Governor Youngkin welcomes Firefly Aerospace to Virginia

Governor Glenn Youngkin announced today that Firefly Aerospace has selected Virginia as the new launch site of its two-stage orbital Alpha rocket, attracted through a collaboration effort between the Virginia Spaceport Authority, the Virginia Innovation Partnership Corporation (VIPIC), and the Virginia Economic Development Partnership (VEDP). Firefly Aerospace plans to begin launching Alpha in 2025 from the Virginia Spaceport Authority's Mid-Atlantic Regional Spaceport, located on Wallops Island in Accomack County.

"I am grateful that Firefly Aerospace has chosen Virginia to expand its operations," said Sen. Bill DeSteph. "As the Senate Chair of the Aerospace and Aviation Caucus, I know how vital these industry sectors are to the economic success of the Commonwealth.

With this new Alpha rocket and the ability to deliver larger payloads, Firefly will quickly discover what so many of us already know: the Commonwealth is open for business. And when it comes to aerospace, there is no better place to do business than in my district, the Eastern Shore of Virginia. I want to personally thank Firefly and our industry partners on Wallops Island for their ongoing commitment to excellence."

"The investments we've made in the spaceport over the years are paying off," said Del. Robert Bloxom. "Firefly Aerospace's decision to launch from Wallops Island proves that Virginia's Eastern Shore is a premier location for aerospace companies to do business. I'm excited for the economic and workforce opportunities that will come with Firefly's launches."

Cobia bite ‘great’ out of Cape Charles

Cobia fishing in the lower bay remains good, although bottom fishermen have had to contend with plenty of unwanted sharks and rays competing for their baits. The nearshore ocean wreck fishing for flounder has been hampered by rough seas, but the fishery has been productive on those days when the winds have subsided.

Bill Hall

Upper Shore

Captain Matt Abell, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that puppy drum action in the Pocomoke and Tangier sound shallows has been consistent. He said that schools of these small red drum can be found feeding over the shallow grass flats, most often in depths of two to four feet. Most of the pups have measured between 17 and 28 inches.

Bluefish and striped bass are inhabiting the same waters and have been a welcome bycatch. Paddletailed rubber lures fished under popping corks have been effective offerings to the feeding fish.

Cobia continue to provide back-breaking action in the middle bay, from the Tangier target ships and sunken barge down to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Most of the middle bay action has been on bunker baits fished on fishfinder rigs in 15- to 25-foot depths while chumming. Anglers should keep a heavy casting rod rigged with a large bucktail and a curly tail grub to cast to any cobia seen cruising along the surface.

Chincoteague

Mr. Pete Vasiliou, at Captain Steve’s Bait and Tackle, reported that fishing inside the inlet has remained “productive,” but little action has occurred offshore over the last week due to sustained windy conditions.

The back bay continues to produce flounder, with the biggest flatfish of the last week belonging to angler Mark Knepper — his 26-inch fish tipped the scales at 7 pounds, 5 ounces. The doormat fell for a Berkley Gulp tipped with a jumbo bull minnow.

Other inshore action has included a consistent bite of kingfish (whiting), spot, and occasional schools of croaker. In the Assateague Island surf, the kingfish bite remains strong for anglers fishing small baits, with spot also showing up in the catches. Some catches of flounder have come from anglers bouncing jigs along the bottom of the troughs.

Large sharks are cruising the nearshore ocean waters and have been attacking large pieces of cut bait. Action on the inshore ocean wrecks had just started to heat up when the winds kicked in, but on the fishable days, anglers have been finding large flounder, spadefish, triggerfish, a few sheepshead, and an occasional cobia.

Wachapreague

Captain Lindsay Paul, aboard the charter vessel Almost Persuaded, described the flounder fishing out of Wachapreague as “steady,” with lots of undersized fish along with some larger keepers. He said that most of the flounder are being caught on Gulp with live minnows or silversides.

Black sea bass are still being caught on the ocean wrecks. Farther offshore, Captain Paul said that deep dropping for tilefish remained good, but the blue water trolling bite was described as “slow.”

Lower Shore

Jeb Brady, of Bailey’s Bait & Tackle, described the last week of cobia action as “decent,” with sight casting live eels and large bucktails being the most productive method of hooking up with the big brown fish. Bottom fishing for cobia has slowed, with lots of unwanted bycatch in the forms of sharks and rays.

Flounder fishing was described as “strong” inside the Ditch and around the Fisherman Inlet Bridge as long as clean, clear water could be found. Berkley Gulp and cut bait remain the flounder bait combination of choice.

Spadefish numbers are increasing in the vicinity of the third and fourth islands of the bridge-tunnel and have been caught on small hooks baited with pieces of clam. Anglers casting artificial lures under flocks of diving birds just inside the mouth of the bay have been rewarded with catches of bluefish measuring up to 30 inches. The lower Shore bayside piers are reporting catches of kingfish (whiting) and small croakers.

Jordan Nestor, at Ocean’s East — Eastern Shore, said that the cobia bite remains “great,” both for bottom fishermen and sight casters. He said the flounder action has “gotten real good” both at the mouth of the bay and on the inshore ocean wrecks. He added that there are plenty of sheepshead and spadefish showing up along the bridge-tunnel.

The writer was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Saltwater Master Angler status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. He has won numerous Virginia Press Association awards for his columns.

Miriam Sturgis, ‘Dr. Kellam’s nurse,’ enjoys retirement

BY STEFANIE JACKSON
Eastern Shore Post

Miriam Sturgis, perhaps best known as “Dr. Kellam’s nurse,” has retired after a 47-year career.

“I enjoyed getting to know my patients and their families,” Sturgis said. Now she looks forward to unwinding by spending some time to herself, doing yard work.

Sturgis has had a busy career, 35 years of which were spent as an office nurse assisting Dr. Lloyd Kellam, the Eastern Shore’s only cardiologist.

When she completed the program of the Northampton-Accomack Memorial Hospital School of Practical Nursing in Nassawadox and was licensed 47 years ago, she began her career working in the emergency room of the hospital.

Sturgis also worked for Dr. Ernest Gibb and Dr. Edmund Henderson, who belonged to a well-regarded group of family practitioners that was based in Nassawadox and also included Dr. John Snyder.

After Henderson retired, Sturgis applied and was hired to be an office nurse for Kellam.

She very much enjoyed the job, even though her daily workload — including scheduling patients, taking vital signs, and discussing medications with patients — may sound “boring,” Sturgis said.

Her favorite part of the job was getting to know all of the people, both patients and coworkers.

“My patients were wonderful,” and so were her coworkers and Kellam. “I learned a lot under him,” Sturgis said.

She said if she was ever in need, she would be as quick to call her coworkers as she would be to call her family because they have been there for her.

Sturgis said Riverside Health’s mission, “To care for others as we would care for those we love,” is true.

As someone who has been both an employee and a patient of a Riverside Health facility, “I can honestly say we demonstrate that,” she said.

Sturgis expressed thanks for all of the flowers and cards she has received since her retirement in mid-June.

She has always appreciated being part of a close-knit community.

The support through the years was invaluable when she was working at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital, typically 10 hours or more every day, and raising two children and, later, three grandchildren.

She and her husband, retired Virginia State Trooper Lennie Sturgis, raised their grandchildren, who are now ages 21, 16, and 13.

When Miriam Sturgis and her husband were both on shift, her parents — the late Robert and Gloria Gladden — who lived down the street, helped out with the kids.

Others in the community also were understanding and supportive. If no one was home when the grandchildren returned from school, the bus driver would drop off the kids at their great-grandparents’ house or give Sturgis a phone call.

“The village definitely has always been there for me,” she said.

And Sturgis has enjoyed being there for her patients.

When asked why she chose to work in the nursing field, she said, “I just liked helping people.”

It was a good option for an “Eastern Shore girl” like Sturgis, who was born in the same hospital where she started her nursing career.

“It was something I could do here,” said Sturgis, who is “not a hustle-and-bustle type of person” and appreciates the pace of Shore life.

Now that she is retired, she plans to take part in simple pleasures like working in her kitchen, picking crabs, and mowing the lawn at her home in Birdsnest, near her late parents’ farm.

“I love to cut grass,” Sturgis said. She likes to wait until evening, when the weather is cooler, to ride around the yard on the zero-turn mower.

It’s a “stress-free” time when “you’re to yourself,” Sturgis said.

She is glad for the opportunity she had to get to know and grow close to generations of patients and work with a “wonderful group of people,” including a doctor “who cares about the whole patient.”

“We’re one big family,” Sturgis said.

as a capital purchase, but when you buy 16 of them ...”

“... It adds up,” said Bennett, who agreed those items were needed.

“When we bought that large piece of equipment ... that was a need. It wasn’t a want, because that other one was in bad shape,” he added.

Williams noted that Bennett was referring to a wheel loader that is used daily.

The wheel loader, excavator, and bulldozer that had been used since Northampton’s solid waste transfer station opened around 2005 all have been replaced, she said.

A total of $353,000 was budgeted for capital expenses for Northampton’s EMS department, including a new ambulance.

Finance Director John Chandler said that the county applied for a grant to help pay for the ambulance.

A total of $485,000 was budgeted for improvements to facilities, such as a new parking lot entrance at the Northampton County administration building and modifications to the entrance near the Eastville Inn, Chandler said.

A total of $500,000 will help fund capital improvements at Northampton’s community center, which is housed in the former Northampton Middle School building in Machipongo.

The community center needs a new roof and septic system. The existing septic system was installed around the time the school was built in the 1950s or 1960s, Chandler said.

The county also has applied for a grant to contribute to the estimated $1.4 million cost of the new septic system.

Chandler said there are “definitely limitations” on the community center’s current uses, and improvements are needed to realize “its full potential.”

He said that since he has worked for Northampton County, essentially every capital project that has been funded was necessary.

“Maybe a car could’ve made it one more year, but we want people to be in safe vehicles also,” Chandler said.

He noted that money from Northampton’s “savings account” or capital fund will help pay for the projects.

“Kind of like the interest income, that’s something that we need to keep an eye on,” Chandler said.

Northampton expects to receive more than $1.7 million in interest income this fiscal year.

Chandler said that is the equivalent of raising the real estate income tax rate six cents.

Northampton’s real estate tax rate, which was approved on June 25, is 68.5 cents per $100 of assessed value.

“Thank goodness we have quite a bit of cash in the bank,” Chandler said.

Chincoteague Center gets Green Grant

The Chincoteague Center has been awarded a $1,000 Green Grant in the Litter Prevention Category to reduce litter in the landscape, part of Keep Virginia Beautiful’s Annual Green Grants Program.

Every year, government, non-profit, civic, and service organizations in Virginia are invited to apply for grants ranging from $500 to $1,000 that will help address an environmental concern in their community.

Funds from the Green Grants award will be used to purchase large, sturdy, outdoor trash receptacles that will be placed near where people exit ball fields near the Chincoteague Center.

This will give visitors the opportunity to properly dispose of their trash without littering the landscape.

Pungoteague store, beloved hub of community, set to reopen

Barry Belle's Home Town Market & Deli will 'meet the demands of the people'

BY STEFANIE JACKSON

Eastern Shore Post

Pungoteague's Village General Store will reopen after closing its doors three years ago, with a new name and owner who resolves to renew the sense of community in the place where he grew up.

Barry Belle's mission is "to restore this community ... to turn this into the town of Pungoteague again."

He remembered when he was young and Pungoteague was a busy little town with not one, not two, but three stores.

One was owned by Roland Waterfield, another was owned by Bob Dougherty, and the third belonged to a man Belle remembered simply as "Mr. J.B."

As a kid, Barry Belle dreamed of one day owning the little store on the corner of Pungoteague and Bobtown roads.

He has long-standing family ties to Pungoteague. His parents, the late Cleveland and Mary Belle, and his grandfather, the late Brooks Belle, all were born and raised in and around Pungoteague and lived there all their lives, he said.

Barry Belle graduated from Central High School in 1979 and later moved to Maryland, but he always kept coming back to Pungoteague.

Whenever Belle would stop by the Village Store, he would remind then-owner Billy Huffman that if Huffman ever wanted to sell, Belle wanted to buy.

He got his chance when Huffman retired in 2021 after 25 years of owning and operating the Village Store.

But residents who thought the store would reopen shortly after changing hands were mistaken, and for about three years, it stood quietly undisturbed.

Belle explained, "I was just too busy to give this place the attention it needs to fulfill the vision I have for it."

Barry, left, and Brooks Belle stand at the Home Town Market & Deli in Pungoteague, which will reopen on Monday, July 8. The anticipated operating hours are Monday through Saturday, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

When he bought the store, Belle owned and operated several businesses in the Cambridge, Md., area: a convenience store, a laundromat, two self-storage facilities, and a home health care agency — all while he pastored a church.

In March, he sold all of his businesses, with the exception of the home health care agency, so he could concentrate on Pungoteague.

"I'm here to serve, to give back," Belle said. "My upbringing here on the Shore made me who I am."

He has always worn many hats. Belle is also a former school administrator.

He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and his master's degree from Salisbury University.

Belle has been in business since the 1980s, when he opened and ran the Odds & Ends flea market on Bobtown Road, across from St. Paul AME Church.

He is a full-time resident of Cambridge — where he relocated to become a pastor — but he plans to retire soon in the Pungoteague area.

Belle owns a house nearby on Big Pine Road, where he stays when he visits.

"I'm home when I'm here," he said.

Belle is ready to return to his small, rural hometown and give his son the opportunity to live and work there.

Brooks Belle, named after his great-grandfather, has been helping run his dad's businesses for a few years, and the Pungoteague store will be his responsibility.

He just graduated from high school and his name is on the business license for what will now be called the Home Town Market & Deli.

The market and deli will aim to "meet the demands of the people," Barry Belle said.

The front section of the store will feature typical convenience offerings, with one wall lined with coolers full of sodas, ice cream, and other cold products.

The carryout-only deli will be in the back. Belle is still working to expand and install commercial equipment in that part of the store and hopes to open the deli by the end of August.

■ The anticipated operating hours of Home Town Market & Deli are Monday through Saturday, 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The Pungoteague store will officially open for business on Monday, July 8, with a special grand opening event expected one week later.

Leaders seek to protect community from climate threat

Seeking solutions for Tangier Island, one of the country's communities most at risk from sea level rise, federal, state, and local officials met on Tangier Island on May 30 with Tangier community leaders and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

The officials visited sites by boat where land is being lost due to sea level rise and erosion, followed by a discussion that explored challenges and solutions for the island. Tangier Island has lost about two-thirds of its land since the 1850s, and research finds that much of the rest of the island could be lost within 50 years.

At the meeting, partners discussed working with the Tangier community to develop a state-certified resilience plan for the Tangier Island system, including neighboring Port Isobel Island.

The plan would help the community secure funding and implement projects to protect this unique place.

An existing partnership between CBF and Old Dominion University's Institute for Coastal Adaptation and Resilience can support Tangier in pursuing this plan.

"Nowhere is the ever-present threat of climate change felt more strongly than on Tangier Island," said CBF President Hilary Harp Falk. "Now is the time to stand with Tangier and all the coastal communities along the Chesapeake Bay facing unimaginable change."

The Tangier visit included representatives from Tangier, the Virginia state government, the Accomack-Norhampton Planning District Commission, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Norfolk District, and academic institutions and non-profit organizations.

"I'm very encouraged," Tangier Mayor James Eskridge said following the meeting. "To accomplish something, it's vital to get different groups working together on the same page."

Next steps for the future of Tangier could encompass the following:

- Working with the Tangier com-

KENNY FLETCHER/CHESAPEAKE BAY FOUNDATION

Climate change threatens the existence of Tangier Island in the middle of the Chesapeake Bay.

munity to develop a certified resilience plan

- Identifying federal, state and private funding opportunities for projects to protect the island

- Investing in an engineering study for mitigation and resiliency strategies for Tangier Island

- Beginning implementation while community infrastructure on Tangier can still be saved

- Assessing the viability of using beneficial dredge spoils to protect the island

- Including nature-based coastal adaptation strategies, including living shorelines of marsh grasses and oysters that protect shorelines from erosion while creating wildlife habitat and reducing pollution

- Sharing strategies and outcomes with other coastal communities throughout the watershed and across the country.

Work on Tangier Island can serve as a model for nature-based practices for climate change mitigation and adaptation along the Chesapeake Bay and beyond.

"With a clear plan and the right investment, we can preserve Tangier and neighboring Smith Island for at least another generation," said Harp Falk. "These islands are a fantastic place to demonstrate solutions for what responsible climate adaptation can look like."

With a CBF environmental education center near Tangier on Port Isobel Island, this living laboratory would also provide the opportunity to educate the next generation about innovative, large-scale restoration efforts to protect the Bay and its communities in the face of climate change.

PUBLIC NOTICE – ENVIRONMENTAL PERMIT

PURPOSE OF NOTICE: To seek public comment on a draft permit from the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) for the withdrawal of ground water in Northampton, Virginia.

PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD: July 5, 2024 to August 5, 2024

PERMIT NAME: Ground Water Withdrawal Permit issued by DEQ pursuant to applicable water laws and regulations

APPLICANT NAME, ADDRESS AND PERMIT NUMBER: Charles Tankard; 26103 Lankford Hwy., P.O. Box 119, Capeville, VA 23313; (757) 621-0481

NAME AND LOCATION OF WATER WITHDRAWAL: Wyatt Farm; 25324 Seaside Rd., Capeville, VA 23313

PROJECT DESCRIPTION: Charles Tankard has applied for a reissuance of a permit for an agriculture facility. The permit would authorize the applicant to withdraw a maximum of 16,000,000 gallons per year and 4,800,000 gallons per month from the Upper Yorktown-Eastover aquifer. The ground water withdrawal will support crop irrigation. The proposed withdrawal will utilize the Upper Yorktown-Eastover aquifer at the withdrawal site. An aquifer is a body of rock or layer of sediment in the ground in which ground water is stored and transported. DEQ has made a tentative decision to issue the permit.

AFFECTED AREA: The radial distance from the wells to where computer modeling predicts the aquifer may experience one foot of drawdown due to the withdrawal is illustrated on a map that can be viewed at <https://www.deq.virginia.gov/permits/public-notices/water/water-withdrawal>

HOW TO COMMENT AND/OR REQUEST A PUBLIC HEARING: DEQ accepts comments and requests for public hearing by hand-delivery, e-mail, or postal mail. All comments and requests must be in writing and be received by DEQ during the comment period. Submittals must include the names, mailing addresses or email addresses of the commenter/requester and of all persons represented by the commenter/requester. A request for public hearing must also include: 1) The reason why a public hearing is requested. 2) A brief, informal statement regarding the nature and extent of the interest of the requester or of those represented by the requester, including how and to what extent such interest would be directly and adversely affected by the permit. 3) Specific references, where possible, to terms and conditions of the permit with suggested revisions. A public hearing may be held, including another comment period, if public response is significant, based on individual requests for a public hearing, and there are substantial, disputed issues relevant to the permit.

CONTACT FOR PUBLIC COMMENTS, DOCUMENT REQUESTS AND ADDITIONAL INFORMATION: Hannah Hervey; DEQ Central Office, P.O. Box 1105, Richmond, VA, 23218; Phone: 804-898-5677; E-mail: hannah.hervey@deq.virginia.gov The public may review the draft permit and application at the DEQ office named above {by appointment} or may request copies of the documents from the contact person listed above.
