Special to the Eastern Shore Post

On May 2, 2001, after receiving the results of a biopsy of a tumor in my lower colon, Dr. David Lingle said, "Your vital signs are good, and you seem to be very healthy and in good shape. But ... you have cancer."

That was the beginning of my association with several doctors and many other medical professionals from whom I have received chemotherapy, radiation, two surgeries, several MRIs, PET scans, CT scans, and colonoscopies since I was first diagnosed with cancer 23 years ago at age 54.

Today, based on my most recent sixmonth checkup, I can say I am blessed to be cancer-free.

Just months after my original diagnosis, my wife, Cathey, and I became involved with Relay for Life, the signature fundraiser for the American Cancer Society, or ACS.

Chincoteague's Ocean Breeze to get mail again

BY STEFANIE JACKSON

Eastern Shore Post

Chincoteague's Ocean Breeze community will start receiving mail again after several years without the service, but a recent delay was not the town's fault, an official said.

"The town of Chincoteague has absolutely nothing to do with mail delivery on the island or anywhere else," Town Manager Mike Tolbert told the Town Council on July 1.

He was addressing a rumor that "the town of Chincoteague was preventing mail delivery in Ocean Breeze."

Tolbert explained that he had refused to sign a contract that was presented to him by Chincoteague's postmaster. The contract stated the town would maintain Ocean Breeze's new mail facility "in perpetuity."

According to Tolbert, the town postmaster said, "No mail would be delivered until the contract is signed," which initiated the rumor that the town was blocking mail delivery to Ocean Breeze.

The town manager also wanted to clear up any other "misinformation" about how mail service returned to Ocean Breeze.

He credited Chincoteague resident Fran Pullin, who emailed Tolbert in August 2021 about Ocean Breeze mail delivery, with being a "constant driving force in keeping this issue in front of the proper officials."

After talking to Pullin, Tolbert wrote the state postal manager a letter saying the lack of mail delivery in Ocean Breeze was "unfair."

Communications continued for two years, during which time former U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria visited Chincoteague and toured the areas without mail delivery.

Luria's office contacted the U.S. Postal Service on behalf of Ocean Breeze.

"I have to feel like that moved the needle just a little bit," Tolbert said.

Virginia postal officials offered Ocean Breeze a set of cluster mailboxes, which was "not home delivery, which was not ideal," he said.

However, postal officials informed Tolbert that new planned housing developments do not receive home mail delivery, including the "big, fancy, highpriced homes and the new developments in Northern Virginia," he said.

Developers must purchase and install the community mailboxes, which are maintained by homeowners associations.

Tolbert said Chincoteague offered to find a location for the mailboxes and install them "to expedite delivery to the community."

Ocean Breeze's developer refused to give the town an easement to install the mailboxes on his property, Tolbert said.

Chincoteague officials found a location for the mailboxes in the town's right-of-way on Ridge Road, at the entrance to Ocean Breeze.

The process that followed was extensive: hiring a surveyor to locate property lines, contacting the resident who lived by the new mailbox location, grading and prepping the site, installing surfacing and drainage conduits, pouring a concrete pad, installing the mailboxes, and arranging for ANEC to install a streetlight over the mailboxes.

After town officials and public works employees went "over and above" to acquire and install the mailboxes, the town manager received the maintenance agreement, which he refused to sign.

However, on the morning of the July 1 town council meeting, Tolbert had a phone conversation with a U.S. Postal Service district manager who said USPS waived the maintenance agreement requirement and Ocean Breeze residents would receive their mailbox keys within the week.

Tolbert thanked Public Works Director Wes Parks for "an outstanding job of an expertly designed and constructed facility."

Schools lease extra space for alternative education

BY STEFANIE JACKSON Eastern Shore Post

Northampton supervisors on Tuesday, July 9, unanimously approved leasing space in the county's community center — the former middle school in Machipongo — for Northampton County Public Schools to expand its alternative education program.

"One of the things that I have ... learned as a parent and as a former high school principal is, sometimes suspending students is not always making a difference in their behavior because they're getting to go home and do what they want to do," said School Superintendent Lisa Martin.

The QUEST program, which stands for Quality, Unique, Educational Student Transition, is primarily for students with discipline issues in grades 7 to 12.

The program offers alternatives to long-term suspensions and provides interventions that help students modify their behavior and return to the regular classroom.

The Eastern Shore Community Services Board assists in providing counseling to students in the QUEST program, Martin said.

Part of the QUEST program expansion is a short-term suspension room for students who are suspended for three to 10 days.

This expansion will allow students to continue their education while they are suspended.

Furthermore, students who attend the QUEST program will not be counted as absent from school, improving attendance rates.

Another part of the program expansion is to help prepare students for high school equivalency, or GED tests, which are administered at Eastern Shore Community College, Martin said.

Northampton schools will lease, for a three-year period, five classrooms in the community center that is housed in the former Northampton Middle School building in Machipongo.

The QUEST program currently is held next door, in three rooms of the Northampton school division's central office building.

Northampton supervisors were willing to approve the lease with the assurance that the QUEST program will remain funded for the three-year lease period.

The QUEST program has two funding sources: an Individual Student Alternative Education Plan grant from the Virginia Department of Education and state funding for at-risk students - those at risk of failing due to poverty and other factors.

Martin said those funding sources are stable, and as long as Northampton County continues to provide any required matching funds, the funding is expected to remain steady.

The superintendent said the success of the QUEST program will be gauged by monitoring student attendance, grades, achievement on the Virginia Standards of Learning or SOL tests, graduation rates, and reductions in disciplinary offenses.

Northampton supervisors requested quarterly updates on progress, which the superintendent agreed to provide.

Because of the QUEST program, four Northampton students, who would otherwise have become high-school dropouts, received their diplomas this year, and two other students received their GEDs, Martin said.

"That doesn't sound like a whole lot, but that's six students that we would have lost out of about 100 students in our graduating class," she said.

Supervisor Ernest Smith praised the QUEST program for providing students services such as counseling and behavior support:

"A lot of times, these kids with behavior (issues), you don't know what they're acting out from because you don't know what their home life is."

Cancer

Cathey had been volunteering at Shore Memorial Hospital for several years, and two months after I retired from Accomack County Public Schools in December 2003, at Cathey's urging, I began volunteering at SMH's Cancer Center in Nassawadox and have continued at Riverside in Onley.

Along the way, in 2008, local ACS volunteer Sam Belote asked if I would be interested in helping provide transportation for cancer patients as part of the Cancer Society's Road To Recovery program, which he coordinated at the time.

I agreed and became coordinator when Sam turned it over the following year.

The Road to Recovery program provides transportation to and from treatment for people with cancer who do not have a ride or are unable to drive. There is no cost to the patient.

Volunteer drivers do not have to commit to a specific number of rides in any given time period. They must, however, undergo a background check, have a valid driver's license, and provide proof of vehicular insurance.

About Road to Recovery

■ The American Cancer Society Road To Recovery program eases the transportation burden by giving free rides to cancer-related medical appointments. Trained volunteers pick you up, take you to your appointment, and drop you off at home — all for free and to make your days a little easier.

■ Schedule a ride with Road To Recovery. Connect by calling ACS at 1-800-227-2345 or Vernon Bell locally at 757-787-3920.

■ Patients must be traveling to a cancer-related medical

Driving patients to and from doc tor's appointments and procedures for the Road to Recovery program, along with volunteering one day a week at Riverside Shore Cancer Center, have been amazing blessings in my life.

Unfortunately, but not surprisingly, COVID-19 shut down Riverside's volunteer program and Road To Recovery in early 2020.

Riverside's program picked back up in due course, but the ACS transportation program, like many other appointment. Other eligibility requirements may apply; for example, a caregiver may need to accompany a patient who cannot walk without help or is younger than 18.

■ Volunteering as a Road To Recovery volunteer will put you at the heart of the American Cancer Society's mission and fulfill a critical need for cancer patients. Volunteer drivers must be between the ages of 18 and 84, have a valid driver's license, pass a background check, and have access to a safe, reliable car.

To learn more about becoming a volunteer, contact Vernon Bell at 757-787-3920 or visit https://tinyurl.com/59bfbh59 programs and activities in our country, has never fully recovered.

Some of our former drivers, all retirees, have moved to other areas of the country, have experienced illnesses of their own (as I did in 2020), or have become less active due to advanced age.

In 2019, our last year of full operation on the Shore, we had 11 active drivers; today we have one, Steve Bowers.

Those 11 drivers provided 177 rides to treatment for 22 patients at more than 10 medical facilities; 90% of the rides were to Onley.

Leigh Anne Klipper, social worker at Riverside Shore Cancer Center, said many patients don't have reliable or affordable means to get to their cancer treatment appointments and often must travel long distances, all of which can be a financial hardship and emotional stressor.

"Any obstacle that jeopardizes a patient's ability to attend their appointments also jeopardizes the success of their treatment," Klipper said. "Road To Recovery has the potential to eliminate transportation as an obstacle."

She suggested that if Road to Recovery could get up and running with volunteer drivers, it would "offer patients an extra layer of support and peace of mind and be an invaluable resource for the community of the Eastern Shore."

There's no doubt many of our neighbors and friends who are cancer patients need our help with transportation.

Lisa Lacasse, president of the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network, has said that "no one should have to go without life-saving cancer treatments because they face transportation barriers."

■ The writer lives in Wachapreague.

About this story and series

To highlight for Eastern Shore residents what services and opportunities the American Cancer Society can offer them as patients, caregivers, and volunteers, Relay For Life of Nandua Publicity Chair Amy Savona will share a series of informational profiles in the Eastern Shore Post in the coming months.

Relay For Life is the signature fundraiser for ACS, and Relay For Life of Nandua encompasses both Accomack and Northampton counties.

More than just a fundraising walk, this volunteer-led experience unites communities to celebrate cancer survivors, remember loved ones lost, and raise money to improve the lives of people with cancer and their families through advocacy, research, and patient support. ACS seeks to ensure everyone has an opportunity to prevent, detect, treat, and survive cancer.

Each installment in this series will approach the cancer experience from a different perspective.

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION Accomack School Board plan helps develop student leaders

How will the Eastern Shore of Virginia develop the next generation of leaders?

The Accomack County School Board found an idea unique to the Eastern Shore: It created a program for high school students to serve on the school board as non-voting members.

It is an excellent concept that should be replicated wherever and whenever possible.

Churches, high school clubs, athletic teams, and many other groups long have been critical to successful youth leadership development.

But our governments seem to have been much slower to incorporate the younger generation into their proceedings. That's a short-sighted approach.

How many Eastern Shore high school seniors even have a modest understanding of the roles and responsibilities of our elected officials?

How many Eastern Shore high school seniors have knowledge of the breadth of careers available with county and town governments?

The likely answer to both of those questions is, very few.

That's unfortunate because the Eastern Shore needs to develop young candidates for elected offices. And our area needs to introduce young people to the critical employment opportunities available in local government.

The young people who participate as student school board members in Accomack get firsthand experience dealing with the weighty issues of the day. They get to see government at work.

In the process, we hope they see themselves in those positions as the Eastern Shore's future leaders.

GUEST COLUMN Boys and Girls Club travels to Washington, D.C.

BY KAREN HATCH Guest columnist

The National Museum of African American History and Culture on the National Mall in Washington, D.C., was the recent destination for club members and staff from the Eastern Shore Unit of the Boys and Girls Clubs.

Thanks to a legacy trust bequeathed by George A. Latimer to the Eastern Shore Boys and Girls Club chapter in memory of his wife, Frances Bibbins Latimer, there's funding available annually for students for cultural learning experiences and field trips along with other resources.

Many of the younger club members were in awe when arriving and seeing the renowned buildings around the National Mall for the first time, with questions like, "Are we in D.C.?," or "There's the Washington Monument!," and then, "Look, I see the Capitol!"

JIM RITCH PUBLISHER publisher@easternshorepost.com

Quiet down. Hold your tongue. Stop criticizing volunteers.

Hold on. Quiet down. Shut your pie hole. Zip your lip, you people who are criticizing volunteers.

Put a sock in it. Hold your tongue. Go sit in the car and hush.

I was taught that you should never criticize volunteers, period.

Volunteers are the glue that holds the Eastern Shore together, if you haven't noticed.

If it weren't for volunteers, the Eastern Shore would unravel and fall apart like ancient presidential candidates in a nationally televised debate.

But there sure has been a lot of criticism of volunteers during this scorching hot July. Just stop.

Let me explain:

It has been my experience that baseball and softball are complicated games that require years of careful study to learn their unspoken rules, habits, hunches, and strategies.

Baseball and softball are cerebral games in a society that isn't.

Baseball and softball are best ob-

Ted

closed and one's mind open, I have found. Heck, I per-served with one's mouth

sonally have spent years monitoring and contemplating baseball of all skill levels, from backyards to the big leagues, and prefer to do it with as little jabbering as possible. They are sports to be studied.

That brings us to the subject of Little League baseball and softball teams, during which volunteer coaches try to win games in front of parents who sometimes don't fully understand the games.

These volunteer coaches, by and large, have a knowledge of baseball and softball intricacies, and should be lauded for their time, patience, and expertise.

Some of the parents and spectators, unfortunately, will engage in all manner of verbal, critical histrionics while watching a sport best observed pensively and quietly.

Just stop. Study the games. Don't criticize volunteers.

Other armchair experts, unofficial authories, uncredentialed gurus, and unqualified specialists took time to complain about the decision by the Chincoteague Volunteer Fireman's Carnival to launch July 4 fireworks at 9 p.m., instead of 10 p.m.

The fireworks show was moved up one hour due to a storm that was forecast. The fire company, the town's emergency operations center, and the National Weather Service in Wakefield were in contact and monitored the weather before making the decision. The time change was widely circulated on social media as quickly as possible.

While there were many who applauded the volunteers' prudent decision to have the fireworks show early, others complained — some rather vociferously — about moving the scheduled time of the fireworks. Good grief.

This is what some young folks call "First World problems." In Third World countries, issues like hunger, sanitation, and education go unaddressed.

In the United States, some folks have a hissy fit when volunteers seek the safety of all from an impending storm and adjust the time of Independence Day fireworks — First World problems.

I know it has been hotter outside than the devil's armpit. It doesn't seem to rain much around here anymore. The weekend highway traffic would test the patience of the pope. People seem a little more grumbly than normal.

But don't criticize Eastern Shore volunteers. Just stop.

she found most meaningful. "This history and Emmett's story ... is so sad and Mamie Till-Mobley was such a powerful role model."

Markay Collins said that after walking a mile through the museum, guiding students through exhibits that both celebrate the Black experience and bring to life history that folks often don't like to acknowledge, the Contemplative Court was an important stop for everyone.

I remember Chloe Harper, the club's dance instructor, beaming as she exited the charter bus.

"I'm so excited. There is so much history to learn about and explore here." And on a lighter note, Damani Baines recalled how most of the students learned a dance with a virtual instructor, which was welcomed after some of the more difficult history encountered during the visit.

"The boys and girls lost all self-consciousness and danced right along, many in unison."

"Our young people read and talk about their heritage in school but had the opportunity to see their heritage firsthand, up close and personal," said Kathy Custis. "Something at the museum deeply touched each and everyone who went," she concluded.

Club members continue to thrive as the summer program gets started under the leadership of Custis, veteran of 20 years, with the support of her staff and many others.

Mr. Charles Donald "Don" Foster, 88, passed away peacefully at his home in Parksley on Tuesday, July 2, 2024, surrounded by family. Born June 5, 1936, in Farmville, he was the son of the late Louie Mae Morris Foster and the late Charles Norton Foster.

Don graduated from Farmville High School and began his career at Newberry's in Farmville. His journey with Newberry's led him to Pocomoke City, Md., in the spring of 1956, where he met and fell in love with Ida "Faye" Evans. After a short courtship, they knew they had found their forever and were married on Aug. 12, 1956. Their 68-year love story began in Faye's hometown, Saxis, where they lived and raised their children for two decades.

A man of deep faith, Don was a devoted member of Saxis United Methodist Church, where he shared his passion for the Lord as a Sunday school teacher and youth leader. His dedication to mentoring youth extended beyond the church walls, accompanying them on many trips and instilling in them a love for adventure and faith.

Don's professional career was marked by hard work and integrity. He joined Holly Farms and played a pivotal role in the opening of their plant, quickly rising to the position of plant manager. In 1976, Don and Faye settled in Parksley, becoming active members of Grace United Methodist Church. Don served as a lay leader for over 20 years, sang joyfully in the choir, and volunteered for all events and committees. If there was a meeting, Don Foster was there. A man of his word, Don's kindness extended to many throughout the community, and he always showed up.

Don and Faye shared a passion for travel, exploring 49 states in their camper, only missing Hawaii because they couldn't drive there. On many occasions, they were joined by family and friends, with whom they shared countless memories throughout the years.

Don set the bar high in every aspect of his life simply because he cared. He led a life based on Christian values, unconditional love, and infinite patience, and he will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Shore students earn SkillsUSA awards in Atlanta

Career and technical students from the Eastern Shore were recognized at the 2024 SkillsUSA Championships, held in Atlanta, on June 26 and 27. More than 6,000 students competed at the national showcase of career and technical education.

Students were invited to the event to demonstrate their technical skills, workplace skills, and personal skills in 115 hands-on occupational and leadership competitions, including robotics, automotive technology, drafting, criminal justice, aviation maintenance, and public speaking. Industry leaders from 850 businesses, corporations, trade associations, and unions planned the events and evaluated the contestants against their standards for entry-level workers.

All SkillsUSA Championships competitors were honored on Friday night, June 28, at the closing SkillsUSA Awards Session at State Farm Arena. As an indicator of proficiency, Skill Point Certificates were awarded to all national contestants who met a predetermined threshold contest score for their SkillsUSA event, demonstrating workplace readiness.

The following students from the Shore are Skill Point Certificate recipients:

Kyndall N. Savage, of New Church, a student at T.H. Badger Technical Center — North (Oak Hall), was awarded a Skill Point Certificate in automotive maintenance and light repair.

NORTHAMPTON

Building rehab ordinance could get rehab

BY STEFANIE JACKSON Eastern Shore Post

Northampton County supervisors are considering amending an ordinance to allow more commercial and industrial property owners to take advantage of real estate tax exemptions for rehabilitating their buildings.

"Basically, these are projects where the buildings are 20 years old or more, and they're hurting — they need to be renovated, they need to be repurposed," said Supervisor John Coker on Tuesday, July 9. The ordinance, which has been in effect since 2001, applies to commercial and industrial buildings that are 20 years old or more, or 15 years old or more if the building is in an enterprise zone.

For a 10-year period, a successful applicant will not pay the additional real estate taxes that the property owner otherwise would be charged for the increase in property value resulting from the renovations.

Anyone interested in the tax exemption must submit an application and a $250 fee.

However, no tax exemption is given if the renovations are not completed within two years of submitting an application.

"Unfortunately ... the clock ticks, and the two years is over. If you don't have a certificate of occupancy, the hammer comes down. ... There is no provision for an extension," Coker said.

He said in recent months, he received several phone calls from contractors in Cape Charles who said the two-year time frame is insufficient.

"We all know the complexity of construction today — permitting, the supply chain, the workforce — and especially here on the Eastern Shore, it can take a lot longer to get things done," Coker said.

He suggested amending the ordinance to allow an applicant a one-year extension and possibly a second oneyear extension, for a total of up to four years to complete a renovation project.

"Frankly, this is something that's already an ordinance. It's already something we want to happen. ... We're just going to give people a little more time to get it done," Coker said.

Northampton supervisors voted unanimously to hold a public hearing on the matter in August.

A police report identified the victim, Jane McKinley, 73, as Mercado's grandmother. The report also stated that the two family members had lived in the same household.

A retiree with a master's degree, McKinley, a Richmond native, moved to Cape Charles following the death of her husband. She had previously worked as a project manager for the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

She started a landscape design business, was a member of the town's tree advisory board, and became a Master Gardener and Master Naturalist.

When Cape Charles law enforcement responded to the scene of the afternoon shooting, Mercado said he had shot someone who had entered his house and she was upstairs, according to the police report.

Mercado later said he shot the victim multiple times as she was stepping away, the report further stated.

He was arrested Feb. 24 and held without bail.

Bayside anglers fishing the shallow grassy flats for speckled trout and puppy drum are starting to experience better action during the early morning and early evening portions of the day, when the sun is less intense. Combined with an incoming tide, these times of provide day conoptimal ditions for the comfort of the fish as well as of the fisherman. The same is true for the seaside, as the incoming flow of ocean-cooled waters through the inlet will produce better angling conditions during the last half of the incoming tides, with the fish feeding in the deeper, cooler locales.

Upper Shore

Captain Matt Abell, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that shallow water speckled trout and red drum in the upper Pocomoke and Tangier sounds continue to hit artificial and natural baits suspended under popping corks over the grassy flats. A portion of the drum population has started to seek refuge from the hot, shallow waters and are moving into cooler depths, orienting themselves around deep water structures in the middle bay.

Chincoteague

On the seaside, inshore flounder action actually improved over the last week, with the best action occurring just before to right after the high tide. Anglers drifting along the ledges have been encountering lots of fish, though most are failing to find limits of keeper-sized fish. Berkley Gulp combined with large live minnows or silversides continue to be the top bait combinations.

A few large red drum, sharks, spot, and lots of kingfish (whiting) are being pulled out of the surf on Assateague Island, according to Jimmy Vasiliou, of Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle.

The inshore ocean wrecks have been producing a combination of spadefish and flounder catches. The spadefish have been caught using small hooks covered with pieces of fresh clam suspended over the wrecks, while the flounders have fallen for large bucktails or jig heads with large Gulp curlytailed baits, Gulp Swimming Mullet, or large stripbaits fished on or around the structure.

Offshore blue water trolling continues to be disappointing, as the only positive reports I am hearing involve vessels that leave very early in the morning to begin trolling for tuna around the time of sunrise. A few small to medium dolphin (mahi-mahi) have been found hanging around the lobster pot balls and fish trap markers. On the bright side, deep dropping for both blueline and golden tilefish has been rewarding for vessels possessing productive bottom numbers.

Wachapreague

Captain Lindsay Paul, aboard the Almost Persuaded, reported that the flounder fishing out of Wachapreague was "still good." He added that there are lots of undersized fish, with some keepers in the mix.

The most productive bait combinations are still Gulps with live minnows or silversides fished around the tidal changes. The offshore wrecks are still holding black sea bass. Captain Paul commented that deep dropping for tilefish has been very productive; however, the offshore trolling bite is still being reported as slow.

Lower Shore

Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Bait & Tackle, told me that cobia continue to be the most sought-after species in the lower bay, with casting live eels to surface-cruising fish being the most successful technique. Bottom fishing is producing some cobia catches, but unwanted sharks and rays often make up the bulk of the action.

Large bluefish have been scattered throughout the lower bay, with the battlers being caught from the shallow flats to the deeper channel edges. Flounder action was described as "solid" along the Fisherman Inlet Bridge and up in the "Ditch."

Sheepshead are being pulled up from around the pilings of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, with spadefish being found around the bridge-tunnel's third artificial island as well as up over the Cabbage Patch.

Trophy-sized red drum are still cruising the breakers, with the best action occurring during the evening hours. The lower bay piers are seeing catches of small croaker and trout.

Jordan Nestor, of Oceans East — Eastern Shore, said that the cobia bite continues to be "great," while the flounder fishing remains good both inshore and around the ocean wrecks. Nestor added that there was "all the ribbonfish you could ever want" off Kiptopeke State Park.

HARPER TWINS SPLIT AND COMMIT

For the first time in their lives, Jake and Jordan Harper will wear different uniforms. After decorated athletic careers at Chincoteague High School, the twins have made the unexpected decision to continue their athletic and academic careers at two different colleges next fall. Jake, a two-time MVP for the Ponies basketball team, will head to Mid-Atlantic Christian University to play basketball, and Jordan, a two-time MVP for the Pony football team, will take his talents to McDaniel College to play quarterback. This news comes as quite a surprise, as the twins' chemistry on both the football field and basketball court has been well documented since a young age, but ultimately, their passion for the sports of their choosing has led them on different paths.

Nutrition class scheduled for Saturday, July 20

The Island Community House on Chincoteague Island will hold the second in a series of nutrition classes, "Healthier Together: Nutrition Labels," on Saturday, July 20, from 11 a.m. to noon.

This class will cover understanding and reading nutrition labels to help identify key nutrients and serving sizes. Participants will learn some tips and tricks that will help when grocery shopping and in everyday life.

If you have ever wondered how much sodium, fat, protein, or other nutrient you are getting per serving, or just how to understand the nutrition label, then this class is for you.

It is free and open to the public. Call 757-336-1993 for details or to RSVP.

Bay Foundation seeks volunteers

The Chesapeake Bay Foundation is seeking volunteers this summer to help maintain the Royall Woods living shoreline, located in Belle Haven on the Eastern Shore.

This project uses natural methods to protect Eastern Shore tidal shorelines from erosion.

"As an Eastern Shore local, I'm excited to showcase a resiliency practice made possible through community effort and support projects that will benefit my hometown for years to come," said Kati Grigsby, Chesapeake Bay Foundation Restoration Coordinator.

"Volunteering allows CBF to implement and maintain these amazing projects. It is also a great way to get outside, work alongside your community, and help the local environment."

Living shorelines use natural materials, such as plants and oyster reefs, to protect tidal shorelines from erosion.

However, like a garden, living shorelines require maintenance to function correctly and maintain their aesthetic value.

Volunteers will have four dates to choose from to join CBF for the maintenance work:

■ Monday, July 15 (10:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.), placing three coconut fiber coir logs, pushing wheelbarrows of sand to the shoreline, and grading sand using rakes.

■ Tuesday, July 16 (11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.), pushing wheelbarrows of sand to the shoreline and grading using rakes.

■ Wednesday, July 17 (12:30 to 4 p.m.), pushing wheelbarrows of sand to the shoreline, grading the sand using rakes, and placing loose oyster shells.

■ Rain date: Thursday, July 18 (2 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.)

Friday, July 19 (3 to 6 p.m.), planting and installing goose fencing.

Northampton deputy fired after sex indictment

BY STEFANIE JACKSON Eastern Shore Post

A Northampton County sheriff's deputy was fired on Tuesday, July 9, following his indictment and arrest on felony charges including sexual battery.

Hector Luis Rosa Jr., 28, of Seaside Road, Machipongo, is charged with abducting a person with intent to defile, sexually penetrating a person with an object against her will, and sexual battery.

The alleged crimes occurred on March 22.

Rosa was a correctional officer assigned to the Eastern Shore Regional Jail.

He had been employed with the Northampton County Sheriff's Office since 2018.

Northampton County Sheriff David Doughty stated in a July 9 press release that the allegations against Rosa were reported to the sheriff's office on April 5.

"Due to the nature of the complaint, Rosa was immediately placed on administrative leave and the Virginia State Police conducted the investigation," Doughty said.

No additional details were included in the press release or Northampton County court records available on Tuesday, July 9.

Records did not specify if the alleged incident happened while Rosa was on duty.

A grand jury indicted Rosa on Monday, July 8, and the indictment was sealed until his arrest the following day.

Rosa was released July 9 on secured bond, Doughty said.

Partnership eases new farm use tags

With changes to the Virginia unlicensed farm use vehicle laws now enforceable as of July 1, the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, Virginia Department of Motor Vehicles, Virginia State Police, and Virginia Sheriffs' Association saw an opportunity for partnership and created an all-in-one resource to support those issuing placards, enforcing the regulations, and utilizing the farm use exemption.

Beginning July 1, pickup trucks, panel trucks, and SUVs claiming the unlicensed farm use vehicle exemption with a gross vehicle weight rating less than or equal to 7,500 pounds are required to display a DMV-issued permanent farm use placard on the vehicle's front and rear.

Permanent placards are available for a one-time fee of $15 and are valid for the lifetime of the vehicle. These DMV-issued placards are assigned to a specific vehicle upon application and are not transferrable. If a farmer has a qualifying vehicle under these new requirements, he or she is encouraged to apply for the DMV-issued permanent farm use placard as soon as possible.

The unlicensed farm use vehicle exemption has been a resource for Virginia farmers for over 50 years. The 2023 General Assembly approved changes to the exemption to address abuses by the non-farming community, while continuing to protect a program critical to Virginia's number one private industry.

Exmore Mid-Shore Market begins operation July 13

The town of Exmore will soon be home to a new venue for buying locally grown produce and flowers, fresh baked goods, handicrafts, artwork, and more.

Exmore's Mid-Shore Market will have its grand opening on Saturday, July 13 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Exmore Town Park.

Spearheaded by Exmore businesswoman and entrepreneur Theresa Pittman, Exmore's Mid-Shore Market fills the need for a vendor-led marketplace in a convenient, central location with ample parking.

"Exmore's location in the heart of the Eastern Shore, makes it ideal," said Pittman, "and with an easy loop for getting on or off Lankford Highway running right through the downtown, it's easily accessible for locals and for visitors."

There's still time for interested vendors to participate in the launch event, which features live music and a variety of food

- trucks.

Blessed Rest charity delivers beds to children

A newly formed charity affiliated with three Methodist churches hopes to deliver beds to Eastern Shore children in need.

Called "Blessed Rest," the program launched publicly on June 30 at Capeville United Methodist Church, one of three churches in a United Methodist Church charge covering the southern tip of Northampton County, said Cape Charles resident John Grook.

Methodist churches in Cheriton and Cape Charles also support the fledgling program.

The program relies on local social service agencies to identify children who regularly sleep on floors, sofas, or niches where children might not get proper rest.

Emergency service groups will also be asked for names of children who lose their beds because of fire or accidents, Grook said.

Other early volunteers include Doug and Sally Williams, Chris Willis, and Kathy Grook.

The launch caps a yearlong effort to find outreach and service projects involving all three churches. Pre-launch fundraising easily raised funds to cover roughly nine beds, said Grook.

For each child identified, the program hopes to provide a bed frame, mattress, and bedding at an estimated cost of $350.

In Northampton County, plastic bags are NOT RECYCLABLE. They should NOT be put in the green boxes. They cause contamination in the recycling waste stream resulting in the entire volume having to be thrown out. Do not recycle with plastic bags. Use reusable containers such as a laundry basket to collect recyclables like cans, plastic bottles and paper.

Burdette wins state youth evangelical award

A local youth has won a state United Methodist Conference award for outstanding service in evangelism.

Jesse Burdette, 15, a member of Craddockville United Methodist Church, was presented the Harry Denman Evangelism Award recently at the Virginia UMC Conference in Hampton.

The award honors a clergy, a youth, and a layperson in each annual conference who has exhibited outstanding efforts in Wesleyan evangelism by faithfully carrying out the mission of "making disciples" of Jesus.

The award is named for the late Harry Denman, distinguished lay evangelist, who Billy Graham called "my mentor in evangelism."

Burdette was selected the youth recipient after being nominated by his church, where he and his mother, Tara Burdette, are active members.

Jesse and his mother started attending Craddockville UMC shortly after his father, Wayne Burdette, passed away in 2020 after lingering health issues.

Burdette said attending the Virginia United Methodist Conference "reaffirmed my decision to pursue pastoral ministry as a career. I felt an excitement and energy there that just made me more determined to become a minister to spread the Word of God and help change lives."

Burdette, who is a rising sophomore in a homeschool setting, announced two years ago from the pulpit he felt a calling to ministry and has often preached at local churches and even across the state several times. He also leads the youth group at Craddockville UMC and has reached out to area churches and communities to greatly increase attendance.

Burdette also has initiated multi-church gatherings at the Onley YMCA for youth.

He is a major fundraiser for Camp Occohannock on the Bay, a retreat owned by the Eastern Shore UMC, raising over 2,000 for the Polar Duck Dip last January.

Burdette is the youth representative on the church's administrative council and speaks to the issues of church with both a maturity and confidence that belies his youth. He is also a member and leader in Sea Scouts, an organization that is supported by the church.

POCOMOKE CITY

Council passes $13.2M budget for new fiscal year

BY JANET BERNOSKY Eastern Shore Post

The Pocomoke City Council unanimously passed a $13.2 million budget and a fee schedule for fiscal year 2025 at its June 27 meeting.

The budget includes a 3.2% raise for municipal employees and a 6% raise for public works employees, effective July 1.

At the meeting, Christy Gordon, executive director of the Delmarva Discovery Museum, expressed concern that the museum would not receive funding or donations from the city because it is housed in a city-owned building in need of repairs.

Mayor Todd Nock assured her that wasn't necessarily the case but said his stance was that the museum should consider the fact that it does not pay rent to the city — an in-kind donation of sorts.

In total, $51,000 was designated as a line-item in the budget for "donations."

Nock responded affirmatively when Gordon asked if that was potentially earmarked for the city's nonprofits.

Nock said in the past nonprofits would bring their financials to the council as part of the budget process, a practice he would like to revive.

He urged Gordon and other groups to remember to do that every few months to keep the lines of communication open and so city officials are aware of their needs.

Councilman C. L. Marshall said he approved of the idea. Both he and Councilman R. Scott Holland indicated they were looking for accountability from nonprofits and groups, expecting to know what money would be used for before it was given out.

Gordon stated that 700 people came through the doors of the Delmarva Discovery Museum last month and that an estimated 15,000 visited in the past year.

"We bring a lot of people to this town," she said.

She asked council to keep that in mind when allocating funds.

Nock apologized that the city has allowed the conditions of that building and the Dockside Restaurant building to deteriorate and pledged that the city will address needed repairs.
